Brief Notes for the Busy Farmer

BY HALDIMAND HARRY

The hold-up in the 1957 Spring seeding is making it all the more important that everything is in order to make the best possible use of the good weather when it does come. It is almost too late now to worry about any necessary repairs to equipment. This should have been looked after long ago.

While waiting for the good weather to come, all the little jobs can be gotten out of the way in so far as possible, so that nothing will interfere with seeding operations when they once begin. It is a good idea to have a well formulated plan as to the order in which the fields are to be sown so that no unnecessary time is lost in deciding which course to take. The plan, of course, must be flexible to permit last minute changes that may be forced on you. Just remember there are rarely more than ten or twelve really good seeding days in the Spring and the farmer has to make the most of them.

MR. HOWE—The Great I Am

(Grinsby Independent)

Canada's general manager, C. D. Howe, last week addressed Lincoln County Liberals and gave a 26-minute business report on what he and his colleagues have achieved in recent years.

What he said was rather enlightening (though we don't quite see on what basis he took credit for just about everything including the very existence of Canada)—but what he didn't say was more interesting.

It's a good thing the St. Lawrence River has been with us since before Jacques Cartier arrived here, or Mr. Howe would have taken credit for that as well.

As it is, he merely credited the Liberal Government with everything from the establishment of Trans-Canada Airlines to the discovery of natural gas in Alberta.

The TCA—a government-supported monopoly—couldn't hardly find a hole in the side that was rather odd, considering the fact that Mr. Howe is a producer of the taxpayer's expense by scientists and workers, and not by the farmer (Mr. Howe), that Canada's population growth is a natural process and not one we hope, induced by Mr. Howe, to be like any other business proposition. Of course, its directors are no longer responsible to shareholders, and there is a limitless fund of capital available to be used freely.

St. Laurent Co. whenever a little financial fiasco occurs from time to time.

According to himself, Mr. Howe is an efficient general manager and the taxpayer should pay for his services. It matters little that Canadian raw materials continue to be exported to the United States for processing there by U.S. labor and U.S. capital. What matters is that Mr. Howe, as general manager of companies that dig up Canada to become Canadian laws, to carry on research here and in the U.S.

And what more can we expect Mr. Howe to do? After all, he's merely running the same old show.

Indeed, Mr. Howe believes there should be a free flow of raw materials in and out of this country (though most of it flows out). On the other hand, we do benefit through the sale of such imports as fruit, fruit and workers, and not by an overall gain to the farmer who is being undercut by Canadian workers collecting unemployment benefits.

It's a rich life, all right, and Mr. Howe, though he's 71, just loves it. "This job of building a country," he said with all modesty, "is too interesting for any man to give up willingly."

But what Mr. Howe didn't say was that Canada is not just a big business to be run without interference by a few self-righteous operators. Canada, as far as we are concerned, means 16,000,000 people who are proud of their country and its independence and democracy based on British tradition, people who are beginning to wonder whether the independence and their democratic traditions aren't being sold down the Ottawa River by an increasing totalitarian government.

Mr. Howe and his colleagues represent Parliament to such an extent that they are approaching an era of one-party dictatorship. It only takes a reading of "Hansard" the official report of House of Commons debates to realize how close we are to the end of parliamentary democracy in Canada.

And it is, perhaps, most significant that Mr. Howe never mentioned Parliament in his address. His silence was ominous.

Forty Bowmanville oldtimers, up to 92 years of age, have moved their "Senate Club" into a converted stable. Origin of the name is unknown, but it has been used since the "club" used to meet around the stove in a local store 20 years ago.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the RESEARCH STAFF of ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

Who Was the First White Man To See the Prairies?

Henry Kelsey, a fur-trader and explorer for the Hudson's Bay Company, is thought to have been the first white man to view the great central plain and to see there the buffalo and grizzly bear. In 1690 and 1691 he made two long, arduous journeys into what is now northern Saskatchewan from a base near the modern site of The Pas. In the course of 40 years with the Hudson's Bay Company, he made explorations and served as governor of all the posts on Hudson Bay from 1718 to 1722. It is thought he died in poverty in London.

What is the Highest City in Canada?

The famous mining centre, Kimberley, B.C. qualifies for this distinction with an elevation of 3,661 feet above sea level. The area was opened up in 1892 when Pat Sullivan staked the first mineral claim. The economy of the city and district still is based to a large extent on the famous Sullivan base-metal mine. It was named for the famous mining centre in South Africa.

What Village Was Named to Commemorate an Ocean Crossing?

A group of pioneers who experienced an unusually violent ocean crossing held a special meeting in 1820 and decided to name their village in honour of Captain James Cook, the sea captain who had handled their ship during the stormy Atlantic crossing. The Village of Kemptonville, Ontario now is a busy railway junction and site of both the Agricultural School and Eastern Ontario Dairy School.
