

Watchdogs Rout Store Prowlers

Many of the largest banks, warehouses and department stores have made themselves virtually burglarproof — not by newfangled electronic alarm systems — but by the use of specially trained dogs.

Jordan Marsh Company, New England's largest department store, has been using dogs to discover prowlers for several years and with marked success. In Philadelphia, a warehouse owner rates dogs ahead of armed watchmen, and a number of banks have purchased them for use as after-hour guards.

However, perhaps nowhere have these dogs achieved greater success than at Macy's sprawling Thirty-fourth Street department store in New York City, which has been using them effectively since April, 1932. Prior to that the store had been invaded regularly by thieves, who hid themselves behind counters and in closets just before closing time. More often than not routine checks by store guards failed to uncover all of them.

Those who weren't discovered had plenty of time in which to select choice items from counters and then sneak out of the store as it became jammed with the next day's customers. In fact, sneak isn't the right word. They simply walked out. It was not only neat; it was quiet.

This type of thing is extremely difficult to spot, let alone apprehend, and when one group (apparently working together) handled a rack of fur coats valued at $12,000, Macy's became highly indignant. Although some of the furs were later recovered it didn't make Macy's feel much more secure. It was about this time that somebody in the store's fan-fung organization suggested the use of specially trained dogs as watchmen. Macy's had tried something like that about 10 years before with German shepherds, but without success. The dogs appeared to be undurance, were difficult to handle, and were abandoned after a short trial. However, Macy's was willing to try again only this time with Doberman pinschers. It wasn't long until four sleekly bearded Dobermans came to live at the big store.

Somewhat (presumably Macy's energetic advertising department) couldn't restrain itself. The hucksters had to name them: (1) Suzy (for one of the firm's best selling perfumes); (2) Red Star (for the company's old trade-mark); (3) Mom (for Macy's own merchandise); and (4) Cash (for the firm's former cash-and-carry policy).

The dogs did the job. In fact, how well they did it can be seen by the fact that Francis X. Fay, director of security at Macy's, "Since we got the dogs we haven't lost a penny's worth of merchandise to intruders." Mr. Fay said, "no one has anyone dared break in and pilfer himself against the dog's skill in flushing out trespassers."

This may have surprised some executives at Macy's who could remember only as far back as when the sign tried German shepherds without success. But Mr. Fay, here was a man who had gained his knowledge of what dogs could do as top security officer for the United States Air Force during World War II. Prior to that he served with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in New York.

Mr. Fay had heard the glowing tales told by security officers who worked with Dobermans in the teeming jungles of the South Pacific. The Army had found this type of dog aggressive but not vicious, with good stamina and responsiveness, and with a natural knack for learning obedience.

"We figured that if this dog could be effective in the tropics," Mr. Fay said, "he would be effective for us after store hours, even though our air-conditioning system would be turned off. That was our main complaint against the German shepherds, which was hard to handle during the hot weather."

The dogs are never worked for more than two hours at a stretch, except under stake-out conditions, when the canine isn't asked to do much more than patrol a certain area. Otherwise, they are used in teams of two which has proved highly effective for store work.

Macy's canine squad, as the teams are known officially at the New York store, has paid off handsomely. For example, one night Suzy refused to pass one of the company's $15,000 automatic computation machines. As usual, it had been covered for the weekend.

With Suzy was Detective Steve Adler, one of six dogs especially trained to handle dogs on their rounds. Mr. Muller looked the situation over but neither saw or heard anything unusual. Finally, he pulled the cover off the machine. It was only then that he discovered that it had been tampered with. Had it continued to operate through an entire weekend it probably would have done several thousand dollars' worth of damage or possibly have resulted in a costly fire.

SAINT PATRICK MISSIONARY SUCCESS

When Irishmen in various parts of the world celebrate St. Patrick's Day on March 17th they commemorate a saint who, according to the Book of Knowledge, was one of the most successful of the early missionaries. He landed in Ireland in the year 432, after years of study for his mission and made it his policy to win over the chiefs before trying to convert the people from their druidic worship.

He achieved this without serious opposition and Ireland became one of the main centers not only of the Christian religion but also of schools and scholars who kept alive the light of civilization that had grown somewhat dim after the fall of the Roman Empire. Patrick died on March 17th, perhaps in the year 460. A lonely mountain in County Mayo where he is said to have prayed is still a place of pilgrimage for visitors from all parts of the world.

A ham loaf made snappy with spices is a good meat-stretcher for the hungry mind.

SPICED HAM LOAF

- 3 cups ground or finely chopped cook ham
- 1/2 cup fine bread crumbs
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup milk

Combine ham, bread crumbs, onion, green pepper, mustard, allspice, and cloves. Add eggs and milk and mix until combined. Pack into a 1-quart loaf pan. Bake at 350° F. for 45 minutes. Unmold and serve hot. Makes 6 servings.

Combine cooked rice with meat for an unusual loaf. Serve it with catsup, chili sauce, or a Swiss cheese dressing.

WRECK-RICE LOAF

- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
- 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk powder
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 cups cooked rice
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef chuck

Melt butter in skillet; add onion and sauté until onions are tender. Remove from heat. Add nonfat milk powder, water, rice, salt and pepper; mix thoroughly. Pour over ground meat and stir until thoroughly combined. Press into a greased 2 1/2 x 3 1/2-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350° F. for 45 minutes or until browned.

IN HARMONY AGAIN — Here are the Andrews Sisters, back together again after two and a half years of feuding which broke up their million-dollar act. Maxene, Patty and LaVerne, left to right, even fought over their mother's estate. The girls' life story will be filmed with no punches pulled because they insisted that the movie tell the truth. They're currently beginning a long nightclub and personal-appearance tour.

TABLE TALKS

by Jane Andrews.

Meat loaf has always been the budgeter's best friend, many young homemakers tell me. One of them explained how she uses the perennial friend.

I sort of weave meat loaf in and out of my menu, never having a set time to serve it, such as Saturday night or the last day before pay day, as some of my friends do," she said. "I don't have my family feeling that it's a last-resort meat. My family really likes meat loaf."

Another way this young cook varies meat loaf is by serving different sauces with it, writes Eleanor Richey Johnson in The Christian Science Monitor. "You'd hardly believe how different a meat loaf tastes when it's served with mushroom sauce instead of tomato," she said. "I have even served it with cheese sauce, telling the children it was a cheese-burger loaf. That idea went over big!"

FAMILY MEAT LOAF

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 cup cracker crumbs (about 12 crackers)
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 eight-ounce can tomato sauce

Combine ground beef, cracker crumbs, onion, green pepper, egg, seasonings and milk. Mix well. Press mixture together until firm. Bake in a 2-quart casserole and cover with tomato sauce. Bake at 350° F. for 1 hour. Makes a good variety for the meat loaf.

First, the official invitation couldn't be tendered King Saud until the election determined the host would be. Then, preoccupation with the royal postponed final planning until he was practically on the boat steaming for New York.

With a shock, top State Department and White House brass then learned that Saud's official party tallied 65, including an official barber, two coffee-makers, keeper of the jewels, keeper of the curry powder, an incense-burner, a food-taster, a tailor and assorted strong-arm guards wearing swords and carrying guns.

So everybody volunteered to help and that's where the trouble really started. The White House decided to take over from State protocol experts, who might have pulled the whole thing off smoothly if left alone.

Next, the Saudi Arabian embassy volunteered to arrange details. Finally, the Arabian American Oil Co. jumped into the turmoil with all kinds of sage advice. It has a $300 million oil contract with the King.

The more advice was mustered, the bigger became the problems. Because Saud didn't bring one or more of his four wives, it was decided most social events would have to be single.

Because King Saud doesn't drink, no alcohol could be served. Throwing a party here without women or liquor presented an almost insurmountable obstacle. To top this off it was learned that the King needs five times a day starting at dawn. This called for elaborate

Trading Stamps In The U.S.A.

Washington economists studying the problem say that trading stamps may be costing you money whether you save them or not. More and more stores are increasing competition through the use of trading stamps which are designed to meet the increased competition of users of trading stamps. Food supermarkets giving trading stamps increased their sales volume in the first half of 1936 by 10.2 per cent. Those not giving them had sales gains of only 6.7 per cent.

There may be one ray of hope for the small shopkeeper, as well as for the non-saving type of housekeeper. The 40 stores in Maryland and Virginia of the Peoples Drug chain are going out of the trading stamp business on Feb. 1 because the plan "has just not produced enough increased sales to justify the added cost." This may be the first faint indication that the tide, if not actually turning, is at least not going as high as it's going to flow. — Portland (Me.) Press Herald.

SALMON LOAF
1 egg, slightly beaten
3/4 cups milk
2 cups flaked salmon
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion

Combine ingredients in order given. Pack firmly into buttered loaf pan or small individual baking dishes. Bake at 350° F. for about 40 minutes. Remove from oven and pour over it lemon-butter sauce. Serve hot.

LEMON-BUTTER SAUCE

- 1/2 cup butter, melted
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- 3/4 cup fresh lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Mix all ingredients together well.

Serve the following tuna loaf with a white sauce seasoned with a small amount of mustard.

TUNA LOAF

- 1 cup dry, toasted cereal, finely crushed
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 cups tuna fish, flaked (or 1 can of tuna)
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives or minced onion
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 2 eggs, well beaten

Combine cereal and milk; let stand 10 minutes. Add remaining ingredients, except eggs, and beat thoroughly. Fold in beaten eggs. Turn into well greased square loaf pan. Bake at 375° F. for 1 hour.

BOTTLECAP FOOTSCRAPER

In its section on "Things to Make," the Book of Knowledge shows how a handy footscraper can be made from 22 metal bottlecaps such as are used on pop bottles, fastened and open-side up to a stout board.

"You don't practice what you preach and, for heaven's sake, don't preach what you practice."

SALLY'S SALVES

"You don't practice what you preach and, for heaven's sake, don't preach what you practice."

UNROLLING RUG FOR KING CAUSED HEADACHES

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN NEA Staff Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — Bring on the official visitors from outer space. The protocol office of the State Department is ready to receive them.

After arranging the visit of King Saud ibn Abd al-Aziz Al-Saud of Saudi Arabia, rolling out a rug for a Arabian would be a snap.

Old-time protocol experts who love recounting the diplomatic flap when Madame Chiang Kai-shek demanded silk sheets at the White House during the Roosevelt administration are finally muted.

The full account of difficulties planning Saud's visit probably will never be told. Here are just a few examples which give an idea what was involved in the visit.

First, the official invitation couldn't be tendered King Saud until the election determined the host would be. Then, preoccupation with the royal postponed final planning until he was practically on the boat steaming for New York.

With a shock, top State Department and White House brass then learned that Saud's official party tallied 65, including an official barber, two coffee-makers, keeper of the jewels, keeper of the curry powder, an incense-burner, a food-taster, a tailor and assorted strong-arm guards wearing swords and carrying guns.

So everybody volunteered to help and that's where the trouble really started. The White House decided to take over from State protocol experts, who might have pulled the whole thing off smoothly if left alone.

Next, the Saudi Arabian embassy volunteered to arrange details. Finally, the Arabian American Oil Co. jumped into the turmoil with all kinds of sage advice. It has a $300 million oil contract with the King.

The more advice was mustered, the bigger became the problems. Because Saud didn't bring one or more of his four wives, it was decided most social events would have to be single. Because King Saud doesn't drink, no alcohol could be served. Throwing a party here without women or liquor presented an almost insurmountable obstacle. To top this off it was learned that the King needs five times a day starting at dawn. This called for elaborate

Gentle People Gentle Manners

The bans for Eli's wedding will not be read until three days before the wedding, and still that time it is supposed to be a secret from all except the brides and a few of their most intimate friends.

But "it won't matter" if anyone else will be really surprised when the official announcement comes. Nobody says anything publicly, yet surely a lot of people must know about the marriage. The bride is Miss Hilda or Eli in the local Wergitz shop. He goes over often to see how the work is progressing on Eli's house and I have dropped in twice to check.

It is a long and tedious job to build an Amish carriage. All machines used in its construction are run by small gasoline engines, since the shop is without electricity, and all the different wooden parts used are fitted and bolted together with the same care employed by the finest cabinet makers. The shafts and wheels have been ordered from a factory in Philadelphia, but it will be weeks yet before the finished carriage is ready to be applied and the gray canvas top put on.

Seeing some sixty-five or so of these carriages pulled up in a barnyard on meeting day, one wonders how the owners ever get them apart, so alike are they. However, on being questioned, Emaline shrugs and says, "Oh, we yost look at 'em and know."

Meanwhile, other events have pointed up the fact that a wedding is in the offing. Amos and Eli took time out from farming to attend the Thursday cow sale and came back with a fine young heifer. The girls and Emaline had a pretty squelch in the frames before the usual time for quilting in the fall and winter.

Knowing her so well, I detect that Emaline wishes the wedding could be in her home. She would love all the hustle and bustle attendant on a wedding, and the work would be nothing but pleasure for her. Since this cannot be, she will try to content herself with doing what she can to insure its success.

The parents of both bride and groom will do their utmost to give the young couple the best possible start in life. It is the dream of every Amish farmer to give each of his sons a farm. And since their earliest days in this country the Amish have striven to conserve the fertility of the land and if possible increase it. With his idea of permanency, the Amish farmer thinks of himself as holding the land in trust, as being honor-bound to pass it on to his sons as rich and fertile as he received it from his father.

The wasteful methods that were out the good earth of the tidewater plantations in the West were avoided by the Plain People of Pennsylvania, who considered it sinful to deplete the land so. And long before lime was widely used in other areas as a soil builder and sweetener, the Amish farmer had learned the lesson that the limelime was a familiar feature of the early Dutch landscape.

It is this same sense of obligation which keeps farms in this country from being sold for speculation. The fact that President Eisenhower would not meet him at the airport, however, reversed his airport-meeting policy indicates to what extent the King's other plans had been rearranged at the last minute to suit him. The changes also included cancellation of a trip to Texas after leaving Washington, for no revealed reason.

As one State Department protocol man reports from the rest of the world, "If Saud's good-will visit doesn't eventually end up with both countries severing diplomatic relations it'll be sheer luck."

MERRY MENAGERIE

"You don't practice what you preach and, for heaven's sake, don't preach what you practice."

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

1. Concoct
2. Car
3. Bouquet worn by a woman
4. Strategist
5. Exact right
6. Place of
7. That woman
8. Instrument
9. Exalted
10. Tamed
11. Exalted
12. Tamed
13. Inhabitant of
14. Litter
15. Predecessor
16. Decisive
17. Annoy
18. Dalmatian
19. Crustacean
20. Bad (prefix)
21. Mean
22. Pious
23. Legislator
24. Proves

DOWN

1. Individual
2. Billow
3. Punish
4. Aerial
5. Domestic
6. Total
7. Tropic
8. Stagnate
9. Straggler
10. Old oats
11. Spar
12. Collect
13. Swaggee
14. Loud noise
15. Pine cloth
16. Artist
17. Domestic
18. Total
19. Tropic
20. Stagnate
21. Straggler
22. Old oats
23. Spar
24. Collect

Answer elsewhere on this page.

WALKING WASH UP — Prince of David 13th — all 911 pounds of him — gets a bath at a filling station to get ready for the Fat Stock Show.

THE FARM FRONT

by John Russell

Steads regularly bring higher prices per pound on the market than heifers but this spread in price is by no means uniform on the various markets or at different seasons of the year.

Comparison of eight years average sales records on the Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Calgary markets show that Toronto usually has the widest spread, Montreal the largest, and Calgary the smallest. The spread is greatest on all markets in the late fall and early winter months when the largest percentage of heifers to steers come on the market.

The lower prices for heifers are stated as due to smaller dressing percentages for heifers, more waste in cutting heifer carcasses into wholesale and retail cuts, and a smaller percentage of the heifer than of the steer carcass going into the higher priced retail cuts.

The Marketing Service of the Department has assembled the available records on the relative dressing percentages of steers and heifers (of the same grade and weight) from different areas as means of checking how far actual figures support these statements. These records indicate that steers do tend to show higher dressing percentages than heifers but the differences are small and in many cases heifers exceeded the steers. There were far greater differences between individuals of steers or individual heifers than between steers and heifers as a group.

Only a limited number of records are available on the waste in cutting carcasses or the relative percentages going into the higher priced retail cuts. Collected data indicate about the same trends as in dressing percentage. The average for most of the tests is that steers are slightly superior to those from heifers of the same grade and weight, but with many exceptions. And again the difference between the two is considerably less than between individual steers or heifers.

Many more cutting records are required before definite conclusions can be drawn. Departmental officials are seeking, in cooperation with producers, packers and retailers, to obtain sufficient records, particularly in relation to retail cuts, to establish if possible the relationship between the two in terms of meat value per carcass of equal grade and weight.

A more detailed summary or interim report on the records assembled to date is available in mimeograph form and will be sent to this interested on request. Apply to Information Service, Department of Agriculture, Confederation Building, Ottawa.

Where a hedge is needed to provide a dividing line in the home garden, a suitable background for other plantings, a screen to shut off an unpleasant view, noise and traffic, or to give privacy in the garden, evergreen species deserve consideration.

Some of the advantages of evergreens are: they provide year-round interest and shelter; a minimum of pruning is required to keep them attractive; and hedges of any desired height and shape can be developed.

Of course, the outlook and effect may be too sombre if evergreens are planted too freely. Evergreens that normally be-

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. R. Barclay Warren R.A., B.D.

Contesting Christ Today Matthew 16:13-17

Memory Selection: Whom say ye that I am? — Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. Matthew 16:16-17.

On more than one occasion Peter spoke unadvisedly. (Matthew 16:22; Mark 9:33; John 21:21). But his great confession (quoted in the memory selection) is eloquent proof of his spiritual insight. Jesus said, "Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." No one fully appreciates the Divinity of Jesus Christ until he returns from his sin and proves by faith that Jesus Christ is really a Saviour.

Jesus said he would build his church, not on Peter (Peter) but on this rock (Peter). What is this rock? The truth that Jesus Christ is the Son of God? Truth through Divine illumination?

Peter was promised the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven. His was to be the responsibility of first introducing the Gospel to the Gentiles. The usage of the terms bind and loose by Jesus and in the Talmud shows that to bind meant to forbid and to loose meant to allow. The Jewish teachers held that these decisions were acknowledged in heaven in the sense that God recognized and endorsed the teachings of the rabbis. Jesus was to be the responsibility of first introducing the Gospel to the Gentiles. The usage of the terms bind and loose by Jesus and in the Talmud shows that to bind meant to forbid and to loose meant to allow. The Jewish teachers held that these decisions were acknowledged in heaven in the sense that God recognized and endorsed the teachings of the rabbis. Jesus was to be the responsibility of first introducing the Gospel to the Gentiles. The usage of the terms bind and loose by Jesus and in the Talmud shows that to bind meant to forbid and to loose meant to allow. The Jewish teachers held that these decisions were acknowledged in heaven in the sense that God recognized and endorsed the teachings of the rabbis. Jesus was to be the responsibility of first introducing the Gospel to the Gentiles. The usage of the terms bind and loose by Jesus and in the Talmud shows that to bind meant to forbid and to loose meant to allow. The Jewish teachers held that these decisions were acknowledged in heaven in the sense that God recognized and endorsed the teachings of the rabbis. Jesus

Upside-down to Prevent Peeking

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking. Upside-down to prevent peeking.

said that God would thus endorse the decisions of Peter and the other apostles (compare Matthew 18:18).

The frailty of man is demonstrated in the fact that Peter was so honored was in a few minutes to deserve the stinging rebuke: "Get thee behind me, Satan: thou art an offense unto me; for thou sayest that which thou knowest not: for that which is of God, but those that be of men." Peter couldn't understand that Jesus and his disciples must suffer to gain the kingdom. We hear much these days to the effect that you can really use religion to get rich and get along in the world. Well, God does bless his people. But let us remember that the condition of discipleship laid down by Jesus hasn't changed it. It is, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."

Not a Job For a Poet — The Canada Council, with the income from $50 million to spend on encouraging the arts, humanities and social sciences, is due to be appointed very soon; and the Government is expected to name a businessman as its chairman. There will be an outcry from artistic souls, who presumably would prefer a poet, painter or pianist for the job.

Poets, painters and pianists are among the people the Canada Council will be able to help. It will undoubtedly seek and obtain the advice of gifted and representative people in all the arts. But, there is no good reason why its chairman or the members of its governing branch should themselves be persons capable of producing a sonnet, a landscape, or a sonata. On the contrary, there is every reason why the chairman and most of his board should have the quite different talents of a businessman.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

They will have an executive job, a job of getting things done, spending money wisely, making a budget, allotting grants fairly to various kinds of effort, sizing up the responsibility of those they ask for or recommend to the Council's support.

Trying to tell us something. Definitely a pro-Western Arab.