ANNE HIRST Your Family Counselor

"If you feel, Anne Hirst, that my story will help some lovesick soul to avoid the mistake made, you may print this . . For 17 years I have lived with a jealous husband, and each year has taken its toll. I wonhow I have survived. If any girl who reads this today is so n love with a jealous man that thinks she can't live without him, I swear that the day will come when she will wish she had. Young people too of-ten think jealousy measures the man's devotion; I thought that. But jealousy is born of the levil, my dears, and it can lead to such evil as no decent women an foresee.

since I married I have written out my troubles in detail as though I were talking to a friend, and it has eased the strain. My husband grew worse, but the only important difference was in myself; I could not bear the horrible realities, so I developed a fortitude, a hidden strength that armored me against them. I do not believe in divorce, and God reached down and helped. "To me your column has been GETTING AN EARLY START-Krister Gidlund, 14, seems to be quite pleased with the unusual position he enjoys at the Blackberg Secondary School in Stockholm, Sweden. He's the only boy in his class. Krister, who plans to become a diplomat when he grows up, will probably have an opportunity to utilize his "diplamtic" talents when dealing with 30 girl classmates.

At one time there was a terrific crack as if something had been hit - a transformer, maybe - but the lights did not even flicker so I imagine the damage was farther away than we thought. This morning, to look at the roads and gardens, you would hardly know it had rained. Perhaps it will be the last storm of the year hope so, anyway.

Well, last week was quite a Women's Institute week for me. On Wednesday I was invited to attend a branch meeting in the village in which we are now living and of course I was quite MARCIA" anxious to go. While all branches have the same motto, same handbook, same set of rules and regulations, same standing committees, yet there is enough elas-ticity in the basic set-up so that ings exactly alike, or have precisely the same activities. Some branches aim at making a lot of money so they may have more to spend on worthwhile projects. Others think that financial re-

Some ten miles north of Kielsow, in Poland, on the banks of the river Vistula, was a cemetery of infinite beauty known as the Garden of Leszno.

It was owned and administered by the elderly Leszno brothers, whose fame as sculptors was widely known.

The crocodile's teeth had badly lacerated his right thigh and the wounds were bleeding, but no bones were broken. Frantically and hysterically he clawed with his hands and nails at the small opening in the earth above him, each moment fearing the return of the crocodile which would again attack him before he could make his escape. Eventually, panting and exhausted, he was able to enlarge the hole sufficiently to crawl through and into the open air, among the sweet-smelling reeds and grasses

BABY CHICKS THE Egg Quality of the Kimberchik K-137, both shell and interior is superior. Heavy firm albumen means more AA quality eggs. The K-137 lays good size eggs and they reach desirable size soon after the start of egg production. They led in early egg size in all three random sample tests entered in 1955-1956. Like the straight Kimber Leghorns, the K-137 possesses relatively good resistance to Leucosis, a major cause of mortality in laying flocks. In the five year results of the California Ranziom Sample Egg Laying Test, Kimber birds had livability of 91.9 per cent based on the number of pullets in the entry at one week of age. When more than 90 per cent of the pullets in the flock at one week are still living, at 18 to 19 months of age, it means lower flock replacement costs.
