

Things are looking a little better this week although there is room for improvement yet. We had the flu. That was a diagnosed fact established by a well known medical authority. And, we hope, this will put an end to the imitations being put forward by Doc Austin, and others whom we will not mention at this time, that our indisposition was caused by indiscreet indulgence in some fragrant mountain dew which was freely dispensed at a recent gala gathering.

Having recovered to some degree we must attribute this new lease on life, at least partly, to the generous good wishes of many friends. We hasten to add they were not all creditors, although our Banker has been reasonably solicitous. Maybe he was just anxious to get us back in the House game as his stock of stogies must have been getting low.

We're glad, too, to be able to take our place on the bowling team for the Stanley Cup play-off this week. Capt. Ray Bowyer told us he felt just like Toe Blake without the services of Rocket Richard.

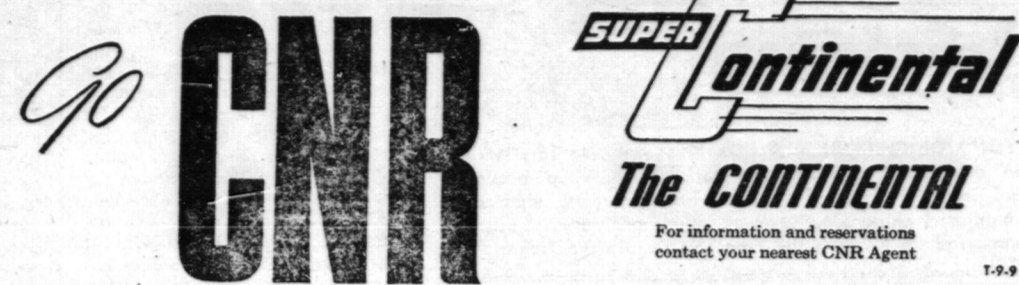

Occasionally a local merchant tells us it doesn't pay him to advertise and, of course, we never put up an argument. We came across a piece the other day that is a pretty good argument to the contrary and if we have time we will memorize it. It follows:

Teachers needn't review lessons. Tell the kids just once and they will not forget. Big city stores that advertise constantly in the big dailies are wasting their money. Everybody knows what they sell. But if you are one of the foolish kind like the Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris that has stood for six centuries yet rings the bell every day to let people know that it is still there, then you'll want to advertise regularly in your hometown newspaper.

The hockey season ended internationally on Saturday night, but Belkirk is still in the running for a senior OCHA championship, and judging by their first game in the three-out of five series with Bolton, they
