ANNE HIRST Your Family Counselor

"Dear Anne Hirst: Four years ago, when I was 15, I married a man 10 years older; my parents objected violently, but I was one who knew everything. Now we have a darling little girl, and it is chiefly for her sake that I seek your advice . . . Her father has been drinking all this time (vich I did not know till I married) and he is getting worse. He mistreats me physically so that

"To far I've been able to prevent our little girl's seeing him at such times, but I can't tell how long I can keep that up. Strangely enough, he is crazy about her and she loves him with all her heart. He has to be away from home now and then, but when he is here, he drinks almost all the time. He tells neighbors that I am a spendthrift, and spreads tales that I see other men in his absence. He give me so little money that I am almos without decent clothes, and I have to count every dime. The only places I go are to church and an occasional movie with my little girl.

"I know you will tell me to leave my husband, but I haven't the heart to separate these two. I expect he will drink more as he grows older, yet how can I let her know what sort of fathe she has? I must act soon, and I'll do anything you say. DESOLATED"

Graham Goes Big Down Under

Resting in his Sydney hotel, the Rev. Dr. Billy Graham opened his Bible, closed his right eye, and read with perfect ease the twentieth verse of Psalm 66: "Blessed be God, which hath not turned away my prayer, nor his mercy from me.

"You see," said the ebullient evangelist last month, "I am almost completely recovered." Actually, Dr. Graham says he regards as providential the eye rouble which afflicted him three months ago, impairing the vision in his left eye and delaying the start of his Down Under crusade. "I know the Lord meant it," he explains. "It created a tension without which the Australian mission might not have been such a triumph.'

Rarely, indeed, had such crowds turned out to hear Billy One Sunday at the final Sydney meeting, he broke his own record with an audience of 150,-000 spread over two stadiums. The total attendance in four weeks in Sydney came to 980,-000: "decisions for Christ" numbered 56,780 — more than he won in the sixteen-week crusade in New York's vast population area in 1957. In his nine weeks of crusading in Australia and New Zealand, the far-roving evangelist has faced more than 2 million persons.

More impressive to Dr. Graham himself, however, was the geographical range. Aside from hese two nations it included, through wireless and tape recordings, the islands as far north as Papua and as far east as Fiji. "I'm dizzy with the thought of what has happened in this area,"

Next month, after short crusades in Brisbane, Adelaide, and Perth, the evangelist will be home in Montreal, N.C. "Then." says Billy Graham, throwing up his arms, "I'm going to have two and a half months clear - entirely with my kids." Next major domestic crusade target: Indianapolis. —From NEWSWEEK.

No matter what the weather there is one crop that never fails. The baby crop. Come wind or rain, heat wave or blizzard, it makes no difference - they come anyway, these little bundles of joy. We have a new arrival right next door to us. Last Wednesday I took the mother to our local hospital for a blood test while Partner took charge of her small daughter. Next morning the mother went to the hospital again. That time it was a hurryup call. The baby was born three weeks ahead of time. It was a boy and mother and son are do ing fine so everybody is happy. Another day we were over to farm ten miles from here where the nucleus of another home every day of the crop was being seeded. The fields looked awfully dry and we haven't had a rain since so I am sure most farmers are getting quite anxious. However, there have been dry spring seasons liaries for hospitals, schools, vetbefore at which time the farmers erans and masons. In fact most were sure the seed would be men's clubs have women's auxiliaries. Before she realizes what saving rain would saturate the is happening the average house fields the oats, barley and paswife, urban and rural, finds herture fields would come to life self so involved she doesn't know and the farmers forget their past which way to turn. We need to worries. The age-old saying still holds good - springtime and take an interest in community harvest never fail. blown away. And then a lifesections may be hailed, dried or out but there has never yet been a crop failure from one end of Canada to the other. True, there may be regional failures. It so often happens one part of the country may be dry and the other wet. But nature has a way of maintaining a balance, although to the individual it often doesn't look that way.

On vet another day I was at our local W.I. meeting at which the District President was speaking. It was an enjoyable, informal but very worthwhile meeting. The President did not give an address as is usually the custom but discussed with us problems in Institute work. Actually our branch president had written to her ahead of time, asking a number of questions to which she hoped the answers might be from the platform. I thought that was really an excellent idea. One question was how and where money should be spent. This is often quite a weighty problem as the secre tary receives so many appeals from outside organizations.

The District President conterded that our own branch expenses should be looked after first. Delegates to the District Annual, Officers' Conference and Area Convention should have their expenses paid by their brarch. She thought that if delegates give their time it is as much as we should expect from them. They should not also be out of pocket. She also stressed, as so many Provincial officers have done in the past, that money-making project should not be the main objective in W.l. work. We should be satisfied if we raise sufficient funds to look after branch expenses and local appeals - such as come from regional hospitals, old age homes, school for retarded children and the Children's Aid Society. Provincial and Federal W.I. expenses are covered by the amount deducted by Head Office from our annual membership fees - except in the case of spe cial appeals.

I couldn't have agreed more with the District President's remarks. I have seen more than one W.I. branch lose members and finally disband because too many demands were made upon its members, mostly for fundraising activities.

Then she went off to a café in London's East End, where she joined her gang. This double life lasted for several months. Then, a short time ago, Janet, the 24-year-old Scots girl, blundered. Acting as look - out for the gang which was car-ramming a tobacconist's shop, she screamed a warning as a policeman rounded the street

But it was too late her boy friends had already crashed into the shop. The policeman grabbed her wrist. She bit him and with her free hand punched him in the face, but he held on.

When Janet was put on trial and sentenced to six months' imprisonment, her employers were astounded. It couldn't be she, insisted the shipping office's chief clerk. She always seemed to him, and to all her business colleagues, such a quiet, conseientious girl.

Like certain other people, Janet suffered from a split personality, a Jekyll and Hyde complex. Sometimes this complex plays havoc with a person's romantic life.

SKY STATIONS - A new approach to creating a stratosphere station has been proposed. It would be kept aloft with energy rays beamed from earth. Drawing depicts saucer-like platform. Rotor keeping it hovering in thin air layer would be sonverted to heat in much the same way as an electric stove element element converts electricity to heat. Under development by Raytheon, the stations could be used for missile detection, long-range communication, navigational and meteorological eids, surveillance and TV transmission.

There were also several anonymous arrivals. Some came with ribbons tied on; many had notes giving family histories. Although all were essentially the same kind of fork, and satisfied the definitions, there were many styles. Some had bone handles, some ivory, some wood -and a few had homemade handles showing ancient repair. Most showed long years of use, but a few were brand new-indicating they may still be had in stores if you know where to look. And also, as I said, that money is no object when the lady of the house is in want.

The important thing is the friendliness, neighborliness, kindness and concern. It is as if we had a fraternity, with the tines standing for abstractions in triple array.

The whole thing has left us deeply touched and humble, and feeling very rich amongst a broad membership. When the panels are in place, and the fork 'collection' becomes a dominant theme in our kitchen (the room we live in!) it should be pretty hard to convince us that an individual is ever an island. If Excalibur and Durandal and things like that have become legendary symbols of morality, how much more potent to us will be the eso-
