ANNE HIRST Your Family Counselor

"What happens afterward?" are involved you lose all rea-When a man has confessed in-fidelity and his wife says she has forgiven him, what is their ife from then on? I am sure my interested readers wonder, as I do . . . One wife writes that she is trying hard to believe her husband is loyal now, but she seems to be failing. Neither is happy in their present existence.

"In spite of all his assurances, and all my knowledge of his real goodness," she writes, "every time my husband goes on a trip my doubts throw me into cold sweats until his return. CHRONICLES GINGER FARM

Fall Fair time again and ideal weather for such occasions. Last Saturday we went to the Halton County Fair at Milton, I don't know how many passed through the gate but it must certainly have been a record crowd. And so many changes since we were there two years ago. Correction - since I was there. Partner went last year but it rained and rather made a mess of things. This year we found a new grandstand with plenty of room under the grandstand for exhibits and a tea room. It was a tremendous improvement on the old set-up.

Of course, there were trotting races. More than that there was a bookie, something new for Milton. He attracted quite a lot of attention. I stood close by and watched for a while as two dollar bills changed hands as bets were taken for the various horses. Then I looked as the next race was run but found more interest in watching the faces of the betters than the progress of the race. Not all could win and it was easy to pick out the losers.

The show of horses and livestock was wonderful, also the work and exhibits of the Junior Farmers and the 4-H Clubs. The women's section showed a tempting array of baking, pickles, preserves and handicraft. The vari-cus W.I. branches had a wonderful exhibit - as they always do. This year it was articles suitable for homemade Yuletide gifts and decorations. A photographic display was a new feature; so also were the enlarged pictures of the Twelve and Sixteen Mile Creek Conservation Authority.

But of course the most enjoyable feature of the Fair was meeting the people. For this reason I much prefer local fall fairs to the C.N.E. They have a warmth and personality that the Big Fair cannot match. One of the compensations of getting clder is watching the young folk grow up, and nowhere is it so striking as at a local fair. At Milton, for instance, boys and girls who went to school with Dee and Bob, were there with school-age children of their own, sometimes accompanied by young looking grandparents, who, in our day and age, were busy raising a family of their own. And there were some even older - in some cases great-grandparents. Not quite so nimble on their feet as they used to be, nor as quick to recognize people, but still active and interested in all that was going on around them. In fact we noticed quite a number of aging people who looked little different from what they did ten years ago some even appeared younger! Newadays most of our aged,
