While Ontario has a new Education Minister, his tenure of office has been marked, at this stage at any rate, by more confusion in an already clouded situation. Nothing has been done to "get at" the base of the problem. "What are we getting for the dollar we spend?" And, since it appears more money is needed, where is it to come from?

While our population is on the increase, and more schools are being built. We are still spending less for the education of our children, per student, than we did two to three years ago!
