Last Saturday marked the second anniversary of the cancellation of the Avro Aircraft Contracts for the building of the Avro Interceptor Airplane which was coupled with the dismissal notices to 14,000 employees. We are reminded of this by the beautiful book-ends that adorn our library shelf and which were presented to us at a public function in a local auditorium. It is sufficient to state, on this second anniversary of that event, that the Government's stand has been completely vindicated however distressful the decision was to the pride of the Canadian people.

substituted for it on the original site. We think this is a splendid idea. When the trains quit running to Port Dover the new station can be preserved as a historical landmark depicting the facilities used by people of this era, who like to fish through the ice during the winter months.

Thirteen boy scouts were rescued from a flooded island in Highland Creek just east of Toronto early Sunday morning when the ice over which they had walked Satuday to reach the island was broken up by a raging torrent.
While their two leaders struggl waist-deep in icy watrs to reach help, the boys, mostly between 12 and 14 years old, kept up their spirits by singing. All were members of the 34th Toronto Bellefair United Church
