PEOPLE DO MATTER
 In recent weeks a certain television program has daily presented to the viewer a picture of a man who has been asked to identify himself with his rise to fame, wealth or social life. Perhaps the program is a bit of a gimmick, but it does raise some questions. It is a question of whether or not the man who is being interviewed is really a success story or if he is just a man who has been pushed into the limelight. SOBA SHOP
 ON A BACK STREET in a less frequented area of Tokyo there is a very special shop which I was fortunate in discovering today.
 This shop is a soba shop, the only one in Canada. Usually soba is made by machine but within the walls of this warm and friendly restaurant the owner stands behind a counter going through the steps of production in time to music.
 Soba is one of the favourite foods of the Japanese and each day at meal time you see boys on bicycles carrying trays stacked with pots of soba to homes and business establishments. In the evenings you can hear the whistle of the soba man who is delivering soba to the housewives so they can prepare their evening meal. Soba is a noodle made from a soft dough and the light truck he was driving turned over just south of Hagersville on No. 6 Highway.
