last week, Mr. Fred Cohoe of Burgessville emphasized the need for farmers to get into marketing and processing of their products. Although he is not active in the Federation of Agriculture, Mr. Cohoe noted that the future prosperity of the farmer depends on his control of marketing and processing. He observed

GREENING SNO marketing and processing. He observed that in order to compete against the men with large amounts of capitol who have taken over certain phases of farming already, the average farmer must process his own products in his own "livestock factor."
