Moss was wrong. His red No. 26 Ferrari, a three-year-old, front-engine model, held up well enough for Moss and his teammate, Innes Ireland of Scotland, to lead the race after seven hours. Then their hopes ended abruptly. No. 26 was disqualified for refueling without completing the required twenty laps been pit stops. "That wasn't very fair," said Moss. "We had come in for brakes and tires. When the pit steward opened the tanks, the mechanics put in gas." With Moss out, the Ferrari driven by Jo Bonnier of Sweden and Lucien Bianchi of Belgium won the race. Once again, Moss, physically, technically, and psy-chologically the best driver alive, had been thwarted. The previous day, in a threehour race for Grand Touring cars under 1,000 cc., Moss had another unhappy experience. Early in the race, on a wet course, where skill meant more than power, Moss's superior han-dling kept his Austin-Healey Sprite ahead of the faster Fiat-Abarths. But once the course dried, no amount of skill could compensate for a lack of horseower. Moss finished third: New Zealand's Bruce McLaren, in an Abarth, won. "Oh, well," said Moss. "It was fun while it last-Moss, 32, has grown accustomed to disappointment. His failure to get the best cars hurt him most in Grand Prix competition, the matches among purebred racing machines which determine the world driving championships. Moss refuses to sign with a fac-tory team; the factories, in turn, refuse to sell him their latest and best cars. So he often competes in one- or two-year-old models Despite this, he has been runnerup to the world driving championships four times. "It doesn't frustrate me any more," he said. "After all, suppose I won the championship. What would be left? I'd have to retire.'

How They Try To Hoodwink Police

Although hit-and-run drivers frequently try to hoodwink police with a variety of ruses, it's losing proposition. Police are on to all the tricks, and all the errant motorist can expect is to further incriminate himself. Here are some of the ploys and ruses, and why they don't work. Driver phoning in and reporting his car has been stolen. But If police are looking for a hitand-run car resembling his olen" car, they will ask for every minute detail of the "theft". ery two or three years and usually have a single calf.

We were 2 miles off the north coast of Florida on the blue waters of the Gulf of Mexico. The white sands of the beach gleamed in the distance. A few feathery clouds were scattered here and there across the other wise clear sky. I had just shut off the motor, and our boat - a gray Navy speedboat known echnically as a "24-foot plane personnel boat" - was drifting the light swell.

We had stopped because we had sighted a school of dolphins porpoises playing or fishing about half a mile away. Our miswater noises made by free or state and if possible to obtain ape recordings of their sounds. . . There must have been nearly wenty in the group - a rather When within 50 or 75 feet of our craft, they all submerged and swam directly beneath us. Looking down through the water, we coud see dark shapes streaking

During all this time, the only noise we heard them make in the air was the "whoosh" of exhaling breath as their blowholes were momentarily out of water at the top of each arc - and even this was audible only when they were close to the boat. But the underwater listening gear told a very different story.

The intermittent tapping or sputtering which had been barely discernible from the speaker when the animals first turned in our direction grew in intensity and in continuity as they ap-proached. When emitted by a single porpoise alone, this noise
—as we had learned before—is a concatenation of clicks or clacks such as might be produced by a rusty hinge if it were open-ed slowly. It was soon apparent, however, that a number of the animals were making the sounds together, and more seemed to join the chorus as they came nearer. Superimposed upon this increasing clatter was an occasional birdlike whistle resembling the "cheep" of a canary.

As they came still closer, the sputtering noises continued to ORILLIA, ONTARIO grow louder and still louder. Taken together, they suggested CATALOGUES the roar of an approaching railroad train, except perhaps that in SIMCOE, JARVIS, PORT DOVER and WATERFORD Direct Distance Dialing (DDD) is fast, easy, economical! It enables you to reach almost any telephone in Canada

If the number you want to reach - FOR EXAMPLE - is 368-1234 in Toronto, here's the way to dial:

(to connect with DDD equipment)

After you complete your dialing, an Operator may ask: "Your number, please?" Please give her the number of the telephone from which you are calling. Your connection will then be completed automatically.

If you want to reach a number in your "Home Area" (the shaded area in the map above), simply dial "1" and the distant number. For example to reach 945-1234 in Windsor, just dial "1" (to connect with DDD equipment) and 945-1234.

416 (Numbering Plan Area Code for South-Central Ontario, including Toronto)

Complete information on Direct Distance Dialing is contained on page 6 of your Telephone Directory. Pages 7 to 12 also list the Area Codes for a number of places in Canada and the U.S. which you can now Dial Direct. If in doubt, or if you do not know the distant number, ask your Long Distance Operator.

Remember: Bell Telephone has re-cently reduced most station-to-sta-tion rates for calls between points in

368-1234 (Distant Number)

Ontario and Quebec. When you Dial Direct, you save time and money. Use DDD often - it's fast, easy, and the United States

It was 25 years ago that Franklin Roosevelt looked out and saw one-third of his nation "illused, ill-clad, and ill-nourished." Today, in an America cele-brated for history's highest standard of living, few would argue that the conditions depicted in Roosevelt's second inaugural have not vastly improved.
And yet in an eye-opening new book ("The Other America," Macmillan), a young social critic named Michael Harrington has turned up an "economic underworld" in the U.S. with no fewer than 40 million to 50 million inhabitants. Harrington's claim to be heard is based on two years with a Roman Catholic social-service group on New York's

Bowery and past studies of American poverty for such mag-azines as Commentary and the Partisan Review. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics figures that about $6,100 is an "adequate" annual budget for an urban family of four. Harrington takes half of this figure as his standard of poverty, and arrives at the staggering number above. Over-all, however, he says that "the new poverty . . . cannot be defined in simple statistical
