ISOLATE THREE OF FAMILY

Leamington, Ont. (CP)—Kersee township farmer John Fenner and his two sons were quarantined recently after contracting salmonella, a disease commonly known as the "summer flu".

Dr. J. A. Taylor, Leamington medical health officer, said salmonella is contagious. He said poor drinking water facilities on the Fenner farm were believed responsible.

"Salmonella is quite common in summer and I would say at least 10 per cent of the people have it", Dr. Taylor said. "It is what is known as summer flu". He said the virus causing salmonella was related to typhoid fever.

Dr. Taylor said there was no immediate fear of an epidemic in this area about 25 miles south east of Windsor.
