 LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY

There are many things to impress a traveller in a trip across the United States. Of course these impressions are gained from the things one sees. How many other wonders are there that escape one's view?

We often speak of the wonders of nature and, of course, these are supreme. But, the wonders of man can also be a bit awe inspiring at times. We had the privilege of seeing at first hand the great development of the U.S. Naval Air Station at North Island in San Diego, California, and if the U.S. is not capable of producing any invader it will not be for the lack of possessing the facilities and instruments required to put up a tremendous fight.

We had a special interest in the North Island Naval Base because this is where our son-in-law is stationed as a flying instructor in the Naval Service. It was also our privilege to inspect at first hand the flying machine which he does his instructing in. We were awed by the complexity of the four motor airplane. These machines, contained in one of these machines is almost unbelievable yet does help one to understand why it should cost $2. Million dollars to produce one of these flying fortresses.

The North Island Air Station was commissioned in 1917 and has grown steadily in the intervening years. The Station can claim many aviation firsts in its history and among these was the transcontinental record set by Major General Doolittle, of Tokyo Bombing fame, in 1927, when he set a record of 21 hours and 9 minutes. It is interesting to note that in 1954 the same trip was made in 6 hours and 21 minutes. The Base was the take-off site for Charles Lindbergh's cross-country flight prior to his epic Atlantic flight to Paris in the Spirit of St. Louis. And it is also interesting to note that the Spirit of St. Louis was built at the Ryan Aircraft Plant in San Diego.

While North Island was established in 1917 to serve as a training base for aviation mechanics, today the Naval Air Station performs the vital role of supplying and maintaining America's Navy Air Arm in the Pacific. It is from the Aviation Station at San Diego that repaired and overhauled aircraft, dealt with the maintenance of the Korean conflict. The ever increasing expansion of our facilities has brought the station to be recognized as one of the finest such aviation services in the world today.

To further emphasize the significance of this tremendous station it should be stated that approximately 7,000 civilians and 2,000 military personnel comprise the station proper. In addition, the personnel of over 60,000 men and women who are stationed at the station home ported here swell the North Island population by about 10,000, making a total of some 38,000 persons comprising greater North Island.

The work program for the current year includes rework on 1,111 aircraft of 19 different models; overhaul of 1,622 engines of four different models and different types of accessories and components. The capital in investment in lands and buildings has a replacement value of $26.5 million; machinery and equipment $7.5 million. It's quite an establishment.

The North Island Naval Base adjoins the City of Coronado. A delightful town of some 70,000 inhabitants. Situated in Coronado, is the Hotel Del Coronado, reputed to be the West's finest year-around resort Hotel. It is a grand Hotel and has been catering to the vacation minded citizens of the West Coast for generations. This room is a majestic establishment and epitome of grand manner in a superb garden setting. Our visit to the Hotel took us to the Crown Room which is the main dining room. This room is an architectural masterpiece which has remained unchanged since 1888. It must be seen to be appreciated.

We find it too easy to ramble on about our trip and it may be necessary to discontinue it at least temporarily. There are important events taking place locally that really deserve some comment so don't be surprised if we take our head out of the clouds next week & get back to reality. We do, however, want to say something about
