On the Farm Front

Research shows that it does not pay to spread just any fertilizer over the soil and hope for results.

The cost of different fertilizers should be compared by price per pound of nutrient rather than on a basis of price per ton of material.

For instance, the cost of a 10-10-10 fertilizer (20, 24 per cent potash) cost $55.00 per ton, and a 2-12-10 fertilizer (half the nutrient value of a 10-10-10) cost $35.00 per ton.

Because there are many different types of fertilizer, it is important to get a higher than average nitrogen value.

Since about 1950 smelt have been caught in increasing numbers by sports and commercial fishermen.

Unfortunately, there are all too many of our high school graduates who go to the U.S.A.
