HALDIMAND PART OF PRE-FLOOD WARNING SYSTEM

Halimand County is part of a pre-flood warning system now being set up through the Grand River Conservation Authority and Emergency Measures coordinators in four counties. The system will allow immediate contact with municipal authorities and arrangements for protective measures to be taken.

First warning would come from field officers of the Authority who would be using extensive use of telephone contacts to EMO coordinators and their deputies in the four counties—Halimand, Waterloo, Brant and Wellington. The advance warning will permit the local EMO services and equipment available if they are required.

A few weeks ago I wrote a book about the Centennial of the Confederation of Canada. The book is now available in paperback for a special price of 99¢. It is a must for every Canadian. It tells the story of the Confederation of Canada from 1867 to 1967. It is a book that every Canadian should read. It is a book that every Canadian should have. It is a book that every Canadian should give to their children. It is a book that every Canadian should give to their friends. It is a book that every Canadian should give to their neighbors. It is a book that every Canadian should give to their country. It is a book that every Canadian should give to the world.
