"THE OLD OWL"

TO TEENAGERS — 1916 TO 1966

Actually I was just past my Teens in 1916. When I was a Teenager I had three interests, these were politics, religion and the Press. To me those three, especially politics and religion, are closely connected Another thing I might add is that in both politics and religion I was always optimistic. "The best is yet to be".

Let me explain. I believed what the Bible says so emphatically, that our Lord Jesus Christ will some day return to this earth to set up His Kingdom here in those days there were no schools of thought, the Pre-Millenial and the Post-Millenial The Pre's taught that the world would grow steadily worse until He came, fought the battle of Armageddon, destroyed all the evil and established His Kingdom for a thousand years. The Post's taught that the world would get better and better until it became the Kingdom of God and, after a thousand years, of peace, He would return.

I disliked both theories It seemed impossible that man alone would never be able to establish God's Kingdom, and the Armageddon idea seemed not only crude but also at variance with God's usual way which is gradualness. Look at many centuries it took from Abraham to Christ To me it seemed most likely that Christians must be busy building God's Kingdom on earth so that Our Lord Himself must come back to finish the work.

This is where politics comes in. If we are to build His Kingdom here we must make it Christian; politics, business, education and all other aspects of our life today therefore the Christian must support whatever party or group seems to be trying to build up His Kingdom on earth. In such a party exists, then the Christian should support it, and that is where the Teenager comes in The future is in your hands. Do not be a pessimist, have faith, try to be on God's side, work for the building of His Kingdom now in this world. I ask you to read and think about this poem, which has always been an inspiration to me. It appeared about 1915 in a journal called "The Venturer".

An age is dying, nay is dead,
A breath of Spring, of morning, stirs;
See, yonder now the sky grows red
And, lo, the sun's sweet harbingers,
Birds of new vision and new thought,
Are everywhere upon the wing.
Fair promise hath the dawning brought,
What shall the coming day-light bring?

O, you, whose hearts are bold and free,
O you, whose eyes with fire are lit,
A whisper thrills, the world shall be
What'er you will to make of it.
'Tis yours to let the coming light
Against earth's smoke still strive in vain,
Or bid with undisputed right
The Sun of Love and Peace to reign.

O you, whate'er your speech or creed,
Whose souls to one clear law are true,
The world in its most bitter need
Turns dumb unconscious prayers you,
An age is dying, leave it dead
Awake ano to one purpose drawn,
By one uniting Spirit led,
Press on, press on towards the Dawn.

Tennyson said: "The old order changeth, yielding place to new and God fulfills Himself in many ways."

...N.I.B. HOLD ANNUAL MEETING AT CAYUGA

The annual meeting of the Haldimand Advisory Board to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind was held at Cayuga on May 4th. It was reported that there were 27 blind people the responsibility of the board. This does not include nine for whom full employment was obtained outside the county. Some are working in industry, others in the CNIB Canning Department and two are field secretaries. Fifteen are enjoying library service and four are receiving home teaching in braille and talking.

There are 618 blind children 16 years and under in Ontario, and 152 are going to the Ontario School for the Blind in Brantford, and 188 are attending regular sighted schools.

Through the facilities of the Eye Bank of Canada, 1,013 corneal transplants have been performed in O ntario since the Eye Bank was started by the CNIB and the Ophthalmological Society in 1955. There is always a waiting list for this operation due to a lack of donor eyes.

In the field of prevention there were 40 Wise Owl awards given in the Niagara Peninsula last year. These are given to industrial workers who have shown that by wearing safety glasses they have saved the loss of one or both it eyes

The CNIB now has 16 films available to the public on general rehabilitation of the blind and eye care, such as one on cataract and crossed eyes. One of the new films, produced by the CNIB last year, was shown to the board members at this meeting.

A report on the E. A Baker Foundation for the Prevention of Blindness showed that from June 1962 to September 1965 15 doctors were helped in research projects on many different eye conditions as well as providing specialized equipment and prevention of blindness literature.

Linwell Hall continues to serve the elderly blind who find it difficult to live alone. There are currently 41 in residence.

The annual picnic for the blind will be held in Welland on June 22nd. This has always been most enjoyable

Mr. T. Howard Ballard was re-elected chairman of the board Mr W. Murray Clark is now vice-chairman, Mrs. Howard Elliott was re-elected secretary and Mr. John A. Snell was elected treasurer.

Mr. Ballard and Mr. W. J Schaefer were appointed Board of Governors representatives for Linwell Hall.

The members were pleased to learn that Warden Cecil D. Johnson had accepted honorary membership on the board.

HEADS, HEARTS, HANDS - - IN THE SERVICE OF OTHERS

More than one million persons will be admitted to Ontario's active-treatment hospitals this year Too many, this might seem a staggering number for a province of about seven million people To others more closely associated with the hospital picture in Ontario, it only mirrors the heavy burdens our hospital people meet with efficiency, day by day out, as they care for the sick in this province.

This year in Ontario, some 84,000 hospital employees, plus another 16,000 part-time employees, will be combining their talents and their training in more than 220 public hospitals, with almost 48,000 hospital beds. By the year's end, 14,200,000 total days of hospital care will have been provided for both adults and children.

National Hospital Day, May 12, is a special opportunity for all of us to reflect on the fine work being done by our hospitals and the people who serve in them. It is also appropriate to remember those who serve so diligently in our interest without pay: the 3800 trustees, who guide and govern the affairs of our community hospitals and the 70,000 women of the hospital auxiliaries, who have become such an integral part of the modern hospital.

The theme of this year's National Hospital Day. "Heads, Hearts, and Hands in The Service of Others", acknowledges the role being played by all these people. They, as the guardians of community health, are ensuring that the hospital patient in this province is receiving the best medical care possible

It is perhaps too much a truism to say that in the past 100 years we have seen tremendous changes in medical research and knowledge Just recently a revolutionary surgical operation in the United States left a man functioning with an artificial heart. Other sweeping changes in modern medical technology in recent years have perhaps obscured what is still the paramount truth: that the individual remains the key to the quality of our hospital care.

It is no coincidence that on May 12 we also commemorate the birth of Florence Nightingale, the uncompromising "Lady with the Lamp", who, more than 100 years ago, established volunteer who works and serves to make these standards higher, we can be justly proud of our hospitals and our hospital people. Truly, here are close to 200,000 heads, hearts and pairs of hands in Ontario, all engaged as a "team" in the service of others—you, and me, and our families. Ontario residents should spare a moment on May 12th to salute them—they're a winning team.
