Sept. 12, 1966

When we left Everett, the State of Washington we proceeded toward Seattle. We did so with a great deal of trepidation because Reg Leatherdale, who had passed through the City a few months previously in company with Bert Kindree, had told us it was impossible to traverse without getting lost. While we have never been lost before in our life we, nevertheless, respected Reg's warning. Well, the truth is we never went through a place as big as Seattle, with greater ease. We can only assume that Reg and Bert must have visited the Olympia Brewery and their very fine establishment in that City.

So we are now proceeding toward the Oregon boundary and wondering what the scenery of this State will afford. Whatever our thoughts may have been we certainly were not disappointed in what we saw. It is rugged, hilly, scary in spots and when the highway hits the ocean it is awe inspiring. We came in to Oregon over a toll bridge at a place called Long view. There are many longviews that defy description. Fifty miles from Long View around curves and hills that would drop you into eternity we came to the Mighty Pacific What a sight. We arrived at the ocean at a place called Astoria. Astoria is at the mouth of the mighty Columbia River and a new bridge, 4.1 miles long has just been opened to take the highway from Oregon to Washington State when before travellers had to go fifty miles inland to get across the river.

- - - - - -

We'll remember Astoria for a long time. It was here we stopped for dinner. We chose a seafood place called Astoria's Seafood Restaurant. We ordered a combination of Crab, Salmon and Shrimp. It was even better than a couple ot Seafood Dinners we have enjoyed at Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco As we dined on this luxury we were able to overlook the harbour which accommodates hundreds of fishing boats, pleasure craft and even ocean liners. In sight too was the new 4.1 mile long bridge and a cannery.

- - - - - -

The next hundred miles down the coast skirts the ocean The drive is divine. About this point we went slightly inland and discovered that the bread and butter of the people of Oregon is derived from the production of milk and loggng The milk is processed into cheese for the most part and from the number of factories we saw we would say that milk puts more presents under the Christmas trees in Oregon than the many huge spruce, pine and other evergreen trees. They have a method of merchandising their product too In the supermarkets we saw packages of cheese and biscuits They were packaged together in cellophane and sold at a nominal price. We bought a larger hunk of the product and can say Oregon cheese is the best we have ever tasted.

- - - - - -

For a traveller a place to stay at night is always of importance. We didn't know where we were going to stay in Oregon. The map indicated that we should go to a place called Florence, or Coos Bay The better half of our house hold had stayed at Coos Bay a couple of years ago and had recommended it to us Naturally we favoured the spot However, because of a few temporary stops, to accommodate other members of our party, we were a bit late and couldn't reach this point before dark. Therefore, we began looking a few miles north to see what accomodations we could get We saw the Surf Point Inn, at Bay View. It looked good. We got our accomodations and found it was good We have four beds tonight, two fireplaces, a view of the ocean, about fifty feet away The fellers are breaking in and the floodlights are showing them up. Who should we have it so good? See you next week

Under Wide Skies

- By Rosemary Hill -

To rise at six-thirty in the morning these days, takes grit and determination When the sky shows little promise of daylight and the floor chills the feet, there is an understandable temptation to burrow deeper in to the pillows The only compensation for this misery is that I have the pleasure of watching the sunrise each day.

The sun's most charming quality is that she never rises in the same way twice, but daily astounds the eye with an array of colours and forms that would confound the most intrepid artist. Last week, she made her entrance one morning through a veil of soft ground mist that blurred the harsh outlines of the bare trees and diffused her de...ate tints over the landscape. How could a day go wrong that begins in such a burst of splendour?

LAKE SHORE DEVELOPMENT WALPOLE ASSET - -

By W C. Edsall

The lakeshore summer properties assessment has now reached $1,129,560 which pays off in 1966 taxes at $76,289.83

The summer resorts also create much employment and much business for builders, truckers, plumbers, stores, garages ,gas stations ,and a dozen other businesses.

In 1957 the lakeshore developers organized what is now known as the Walpole Lakeshore Developers Association, which was re-organized on October 25th with William C Edsall as president.

The purpose of the organization is not only to protect the developers but also the cottage owners and all the taxpayers of Walpole We first realized the need of this organization in 1957 when the council at that time tried to force a subdivision control bylaw on to the Township. We defeated it.

On July 5, 1966 the present council registered a bylaw on block "G" at Peacock Point without advance notice or discussion with the developers Members of the council have stated they expect to have the bylaw on the whole township by the end of the year.

To sell 10 acre lots without a registered plan or 15000 sq. ft with it are both quite impossible for cottage lots. If the farmers wish to sell large lots they can sell whatever size their buyers want without the bylaw. And they can choose to make a registered plan or not just as they like and be the sole owner and master of their own business

Watch your newspaper for future articles by the writer.

Since talks with the present council have been ineffective. The developers have discussed ways and means of dealing with the situation, even to breaking away from Walpole if necessary The name chosen for the new Township is Erie Township which might extend to and become Erie County. The election of Dec. 5th follow ing the nomination of Nov. 28th could well paint a new picture of progress and unity for all of Walpole, this would be better in the interest of our fair Canada If we start to disintegrate, Quebec could become a part of France and a Great Lakes Shore Province could become a part of the U. S and have a multi-million dollar tourist industry, perhaps with tax exemption something like the Florida pattern.

In these changing times with dictatorial power creeping in on us, it is time to awaken from our complacency and exercise our rights to free elections, freedom of speech and freedom of the press in order to maintain these rights. If we can find loyal and capable men to accept nomination we can restore progress and protect the interests of all the taxpayers. A big turnout of voters shows that the voters still hald the reins of power.
