

Under Wide Skies

"It is better to put your trust in one true fried than in many of doubtful worth." Sometimes it is hard to know who are your true friends but you find out when you are in trouble. The column, this week, is a collection of thoughts that I will dedicate to all true friends. Terry Laidlaw, the very attractive wife of Murray Laidaw, the Walpole native who eff for greener shores, sen us copy of "Sugar and Spice entily produced for National consumption by Bill Smiley. Ill, according to his own assessment of himself is a very dinary fellow who served in the last Great War and then ecided he wanted to be a United to the wanted to be a United to the most a course the proprietorship of a likely newspaper open. Bill, cause of family connections, need to be helpful in this gic situation and ended up ning the newspaper.

The most effective way to be come unpopular is to reveaught.

wanted to be helpful in this tragic situation and ended up downing the newspaper.

For the past seventeen years he has been the Editor. In the meantime he was able to syndicate a column that has got a lot of stuff Now has sold the newspaper, but his column will continue. We are glad to learn this We had the opportunity to buy his column several years ago but decided against it in the surk nowledge that "Pen, Scissors and Pastepot" would no longer be read. However, we've never missed a column of "Sugar and Spice" by Bill Smiley since he started to write it.

The column that Terry Laidlaw sent us for our perusal, which, of course, we had read a week earlier, had to do with the emotional problems which centrolonal problems which the emotional problems which the emotional problems which the emotional problems which was amusing, as Bill Smiley "The cold of Canada nobody knows; you can burn your shoes without warming your toes!"

In the most effective way to be come unpopular is to reveau your true nature

A man who dies before he as accomplished his goal in life is spared the crushing deteat of having nothing left to life for.

The who would have the love of a child, need not try to buy it. A child is willing to give away his heart with no strings are fonly someone will reach out and take it.

It is a foolish kind of economic time. The longer you wait, the less time you have.

It is all very well to be a time the essenting tilight, but much nicer to be someone's shining star.

To end on a light note, here is a rhyme written by an ancestor of mine who came to canada a century ago and found the emotional problems which confront a weekly editor every week of the year. While it was amusing, as Bill Smiley "The coid of Canada nobody knows; you can burn your shoes" of Grimsby spent the week end at the home of Mrs. A A Miller the mount of 100 per cent of the two roushing deteat of having nothing left to life for.
