

Under Wide Skies

By Rosemary Hill

On Sunday, March 5, 1967 at 11:20 A.M. Governor-General George Vanier died quietly surrounded by his family...

It is interesting however, to learn that former Republican Vice-President Richard Nixon, seems to be on the side of President Johnson with respect to the bombing of North Vietnam...

What, in fact, the present Democratic Government in U.S. is now proclaiming as policy is absolutely identical to the policy enunciated by Sen. Goldwater when he attempted to win majority support for the Presidency in the last election...

Who will succeed General Vanier? Already the pundits are beginning to name names. The ex-Mayor of Ottawa, James St. Denis, is one of the names being mentioned...

From our own point of view, and we would be the first to agree, this does not constitute a qualification we would like to see George Vanier become our next Governor-General.
