

Under Wide Skies

By Rosemary Hill

Ugh! These commercials! Are there any commercials that irritate you so much that you feel the urge to rewrite them? I don't want to hear of any more of these "I'm a smoker, I'm a drinker, I'm a sinner" type of thing. I don't want to hear of any more of these "I'm a sinner, I'm a drinker, I'm a smoker" type of thing. I don't want to hear of any more of these "I'm a sinner, I'm a drinker, I'm a smoker" type of thing.

Four dog will gobble this delicious food without a second thought. Simply combine with one-half cup of water and a point of rare sirloin. Now that the hay fever season is upon us, pack your bags and take your sinuses to Arizona.

Buy a lovely, striped, terrycloth towel for only ninety-nine cents and receive, absolutely free, a valuable gift pack of high quality soap flakes.

It's new! It's dramatic! It's compact car so small, it can pack your car's trunk. It's the only car that will leave the children and dog behind. Perfect way to a happy holiday.

Don't be caught wearing the same old thing, year in and year out. Buy the newest thing in zingy sweaters. It shrinks after only three washings so you can treat yourself to a new one in the latest style.

Be an individualist. Try our new, garlic-scented mouthwash guaranteed to give you that fresh, clean, confident air.

We are now introducing a new concept in gardening. After years of dedicated research, we present a product that will kill effectively, the ugly, green grass that yearly seizes control of your lawn, without way damaging your choice, golden dandelions. The addition of a special fertilizer to grow these exquisite blooms to the size of chrysanthemums. Good. Buy some of your neighbours.

Does your husband take you for granted, now that you are turning grey? Does he get excited that you are less than thirty? Show those stupid blondes who have more fun! Call our twenty-four hour introduction service. We'll get you a new husband, and get yourself a new husband.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR NOTES

Dear Mr. Miller,

I don't think any of us realized just what a tremendous undertaking the water works was. So many of us were hesitant in accepting it as the best thing for the community.

I am sure we should all be very grateful to Ernest Cradock for his stamina and endurance in pursuing this project against great odds.
