ADVENT OF CHRISTMAS

PERSONALS

SIMPLE AND PROFOUND
 By Rev. D. C. Los, E.A., E.D.

Christmas is a time when people are likely to eat too much and spend more than they can afford to go overboard on lavish gifts. Why? Because they want to say how much they love each other. Nothing could be better than that. But is there sometimes a hope that the gift will do instead of the feelings, the love? How do you truly express love that goes with the gift? No gift is really acceptable if it is given without love, and loving thought can go into quite simple things, particularly if you have made them yourself. Eating is a pleasant necessity and a bit of feasting is a good way to mark special occasions, especially family occasions with care and worries cast aside. How bleak winter would be without Christmas!

How bleak the world would be without Christ. How bleak life in the world is where Christ is not admitted to the plan!

How bleak the lives of Smith, Jones and Robinson eventually become if there is nothing of the mind of Christ ever brought. Eventually, where the insights of the Holy Scriptures are never brought to bear on the affairs of men and nations, the light of consequence catches up your "your house is left unto you as a solitary" — as desolate as your

At the time of the first startled Shepherd watch. I feel quite disturbed at the thought. I could vow to dedicate every bit of energy, every opportunity of group teamwork, toward peace on earth, good will among men. I could practice getting others to the same dedication, to the same purpose.

With the passing of the years, there must have been many who fell in their day as I feel in our day; what is the answer? I'm sure there must now a very late hour still to be asking for the answer. God grants that we shall find it before it is too late. — Our prayer is in the name of Jesus Christ.

Meanwhile, God's goodness has been wondrously apparent to us even when things in various parts of the world are apparently going from bad to worse.

If it is still true that to whom much has been given, from them much is to be expected, our contributions to the peace and good-will in the world are still in the inception stage. May our Christmas Season be marked by a continued progress toward a new realization of world understanding.
