The small things in life are really the things that make life

To have friends over and to choose and the chores and the problems that continually crop the future and to hope for the new experiences. To sit back and reflect on life in general can life for a moment it strikes us strange to pick up the daily newspaper day after day to be confronted with a new name to add to the list of women who have kissed the Prime Minister. We find it strange that so many women of all ages would follow him to the end of the earth for one quick peck on the cheek. As a matter of fact, we tend to find the reporting of these occurrences boring and of lit suffer heavy fire loss when the lacksmith shop.

The small things in life are really the things that make life know. We can only say that by reporting them it probably adds ten more women to the list of those whose goal in life is to sneak a kiss so that their names will appear in print. We wonder if maybe an open letter to the Prime Minister might curtail the number of kisses. Maybe it's just jealousy.

Bus drivers, being human, are less safe if irritated or otherwise disturbed. But unlike private motorists, their responsibility includes the immediate safety of as many as 60 people. The Ontario Safety League asks, all automobile drivers to show extra consideration towards public transportation vehicles. Passengers also, can help in many ways to ensure the smooth, safe operation of buses and street cars.
