$ $ And Good Sense

by William J. Martin
Have you finished your Christmas shopping yet? You haven't started, you say. Well that puts you with the majority of holiday shoppers, but it could cost you some money, too.

You've probably been advised to shop early many times, and I'm about to tell you again. It can save you a lot of money as well as time and effort.

As with any spending program, you must start with a plan for maximum efficiency. Most people have good intentions of getting organized and shopping early, but somehow always seem to end up frantically running all over town trying to complete their gift buying in a few days. Because they are rather desperate to buy something, they often buy almost anything and don't think much about the cost until the bills come later.

The time to correct that annual mistake is right now. Don't put it off another day.

DEVELOP SYSTEM
SASKATOON (CP) - A University of Saskatchewan team has developed a computer system for making maps automatically and federal government engineers will apply it to production of hydrographic charts. The Canadian Hydrographic Service supported the project with about $250,000 worth of equipment and an estimated $300,000 for operations.

Do you have a gift list? Do you even know how many people you are going to buy for? Sit down and get that list going. Write down the names of all you want to buy gifts for and then list the total amount of money you have to spend on all the gifts, leaving enough for the usual holiday entertaining.

Now split the money up among all those names and fit the gift into the budget you have - and stick to it. Then begin your shopping immediately while merchandise stocks are high and crowds are somewhat lighter than they are during the last week before Christmas. This way you'll have a little time to shop around and not just grab the first thing you see. You can still please all the people on your list and save money because you planned ahead. The big difference comes after the holidays if you charged most of your purchases. Wouldn't it be nice not to start the new year in debt?
