Snowmobile Safety

In November, 1969, The Canadian Press carried a 1969-Canada Survey on snowmobiling — a sport that is indeed becoming a professional part of life to many who make their living in the winter wilderness.

Although, the survey revealed, the outlook is for more expansion of snowmobiling, there was a warning of a dangerous use of the vehicle could result in a North American Phillips and Mrs. North had a fatal rate.

This has proven true. In Ontario alone, in the month of December, virtually every weekend has counted at one fatality attached to the snow vehicles.

It seems timely now to recall some of the tips included in the CP survey, provided by the International Snowmobile Industry Association: Cross highways carefully; Never travel on railway tracks; Avoid thin ice on lakes and rivers; Never take long journeys into the wilderness without leaving word with a responsible person who can tip off authorities if the snowmobiler does not arrive back in the estimated time; Learn the wind-chill factors.

Experienced bushmen such as trappers and timber cruisers use snowmobiles now to replace the dog teams of old — even as has the RCMP — but these men are professionals, wise in the ways of the wild, who would never venture out without adequate supplies to use in the event of a breakdown.

Not so the city dweller, to whom cold, snow and icy conditions are merely inconveniences in his relatively secure environment. Such a person could fuel himself stranded by motor failure or out of fuel miles away from any kind of shelter in bush areas no farther removed from Metropolitan Toronto than 100 miles, or less.

But this stranded-in-the-wilderness situation perhaps the least of all his threats. Too many snowmobilers are ill using highways as a means of transport, after they have had their runs on open fields. It is not always the snowmobiler who is to blame — in one recent case a stranded automobile left by the roadside was hit from behind in the darkness by a snowmobile whose driver did not see the obstruction until it was too late.

Even crossing a highway is a risk for the snowmobile driver. Whether or not he is aware of it, an automobile driver in most cases cannot see the low-slung snowmobile until it pops out inches away from his front bumper.

Snowmobiling is a vigorous and entertaining sport — and more power to it. But it must be treated with the same caution that man has had to use — but often hasn't — in dealing with machines since James Watt discovered the power of steam.

The Carroll Lindsay home, located in Walpole Township on Con. 2, would be worthwhile to preserve some of the history of land that will soon be covered by buildings of industrial giants moving into the area.

The home has been occupied by four generations of Lindsays. It is hoped that Texaco, that has an option on the land and buildings, will consider keeping the home intact.

Mr. Lindsay wants the home to go to the Historical Society to house the present museum located in the old jury room in the Court House at Cayuga. The society has been requested to move the museum.

With a packed congregation, The Rev. Eric A. Ramattan, minister in charge, conducted the baptism and climaxed the morning's worship with an inspiring message taken from the prophecy of Isaiah 9:6: "For to us a child is born," in which he stressed the miracle of life, the opportunity of joyful service and a charge to parents to "train the child in the way he should go."

The children and parents were: Patricia Lynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Marr, Lesley Alison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McDowall, Melanie Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mattice and Master Ian Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ianson.

The writer of the first editorial on December 18th expressed his feelings very well although he left out education which happens to be my field. There may well be some "Perilous Progress" ahead in that part of our culture. However, I think that he and I are too pessimistic. The world has been through worse times and will be again. At least he predicts that there will be a "Tomorrow" and here I agree.

I have a fairly close relationship with the young people of Haldimand County. It is quite true that they cannot mould the world's future but they will do a good job in this area.

Miss Hamstra is one of many people who have known raw discrimination during 1969 because of compulsory unionism. Let's hope that the Government will have the political courage to introduce legislation that will order an immediate cessation — once and for all! — of the widespread practice of coercing men into unions committed to social, economic and political principles the very opposite of their own.

We have just entered the Seventies. Hopefully this will not be just another decade marred by discrimination and dictatorship but one marked by justice and liberty for all. Time will tell.

Sincerely yours,
Gerald Vandezande

Continuing cold for the next five days is the regional forecast of the Simcoe Weather Bureau.

Temperatures will average eight to 10 degrees below the normal high of 29 and the low of 17.

Only minor day to day changes during the period said the forecaster.

Snow will total about an inch — occurring Thursday and Friday.

Only 262 Jarvis voters marked their ballots for Council in the Municipal voting on Monday. Councillor Edward Steir headed the poll with 208 votes and was followed by a new comer to the Municipal field, Howard Krouse, with 188. Councillors Marshall and Welt were also elected.

According to the latest figures just issued, Haldimand County produced 1996,500 bushels of feed grains in 1949. By careful management this may be sufficient to carry through the livestock we now have on hand.

A number from Jarvis celebrated New Year's Eve at the Hagersville Army Camp. Others attended the dance at the Simcoe High School and many house parties throughout the Village afforded an opportunity of welcoming in the New Year.

Alfred Barlow's dog "Ring", carried away the grand championship at the Coon Dog Trials held at Scotland on Monday, December 26. Included in the contestants were many fine U.S. animals as well as the best throughout Ontario.

Alf says that the strongest opposition to "Ring" is from some of the local hounds, particularly one belonging to Cyril Nie of Cheapside.

Objectives For The New Year

We have, all of us, entered into a new stage in the journey of life with the coming of the year 1970. What are our objectives for this coming year? Or have we any? Are we like men lost in the desert, just plodding along? Has life any meaning or purpose or is it just a weary treadmill?

There are people who have no objective, no purpose in life and these people are usually people who have no real faith in God.

They are not Agnostics, they are not anything, they just live from day to day thinking that God is not interested in them, nor they in Him, so they go through life without any thought of God from one year's end to another.

To such life is just a weary round, they do not understand why we are here or where we are going. One of the consequences of this is a tendency to ignore God's commandments so that the supreme purpose in life is to please themselves.

Anything is legitimate so long as they keep out of jail and do not cause too great a scandal. They have no real objective in life.

The practicing Christian sees things in a different way. He believes in God and that God is interested in him. He seeks to please and serve the God who made him and redeemed him and who gave him this wonderful world to live in.

He knows his life here will be comparatively short and his great over-all objective is so to live in this life so that he shall be ready for what comes after, which is eternal life.

The journey through life is an educational, developing process intended to prepare us for the life beyond in Paradise and in Heaven.

If we expect to live with God in eternity we should be living with him now. We can do this by becoming more and more acquainted with the revelation he has given to us in the Bible, by prayer and by joining in the public worship of God.

In this worship we join ourselves to the angels and archangels in praising God. Then we can try to be like God.

We cannot be like him in his creative activity or in his holiness, but we can be like him in one thing, that is to be loving. St. John says "God is love."

If we try to be loving in our dealings with our fellow men we shall be acting as God had acted in his dealings with us. A third objective is service.

Jesus said He would come again to set up His Kingdom. In the meanwhile His Church is slowly, "Oh" so slowly, building His Kingdom here on the earth. We can help to do that.

To sum it all up, the Christian has an objective in life and this gives meaning to our journey through life.

At the beginning of the Advent Season Wesley United Church was the scene of a most impressive and wonderful baptismal ceremony, when parents presented four children to be baptised.

I enjoy the new format that you have employed. I hope that eventually the other local papers follow suit.

I read all the Haldimand papers and find yours the most interesting. There is a possibility that I may be prejudiced because I have been reading 'The Record' since 1917. I was born at R.R. 3, Jarvis, and probably am still a Jarvis boy at heart. You are the first publishers that I have not known personally.

Voters in Port Dover and Hagersville, our neighboring towns, turned out in good numbers for New Year's Day voting, and keen contests were fought in both municipalities.

C. D. Woolley, the Port Dover veteran, was returned to the Reeveship by the narrow margin of two votes 357 being compiled in his favor, while his opponent, Edward Forest, a member of last year's council had a total of 355.

Letters To The Editor

We are too apt to judge our future by the five percent of our young people that make the local court news in the Hamilton newspaper. I can vouch for the fact that the other ninety-five percent are the kind of people that we can turn Canada and Haldimand over to when our generation have finished with it. They'll do a better job than we have done.
