The Ontario government should make up to $4.500 available through the capital grants program to farmers required to purchase expensive equipment in order to control pollution.

This is one of nine recommendations. concerning pollution which the Ontario Federation of Agriculture will take to the Robarts Cabinet for quick

The capital grants program now allows up to $2,500 assistance to farmers for certain projects. The recommendation calls for the purchase of pollution abatement equipment to be included now in the grants

Because of the high cost involved in the purchase of such equipment, and because the fight to control pollution benefits all of society, the OFA also wants the government to make an additional $2,000 a farmer available for the purchase of the pollution abatement

The OFA wants the Ontario government's 'Suggested Code of Practice" to be amended to include a certificate of approval for non-rural interests so farmers will be protected from polituion produced by industries or cities developed in generally

Gordon Hill, OFA President, says that the code does not protect the farmer's rights in the pollution control matter. He explains that the code must be changed before it receives approval from

The Federation also calls for compensation to be paid to farmers when income is lost through restrictions imposed via the Energy and Resources Management Branch of the government. This would apply to zoning changes and loss of market
