Mrs. Jack Wood convened the program.

Mrs. Clayton Weaver as delegate to the Hamilton Area Convention gave a splendid report for the first day proceedings. She was not able to be present on the second day because of a funeral in her family. Mrs. George Bassindale kindly took her place and made the report to the branch. This was also a splendid report.

Mrs. Wm. Lamb gave the motto "He that hath health hath hope, and he who has hope has everything." She concluded with a poem.

Mrs. Hubert Field spoke on the topic "Water Pollution" her talk showed that she had done a great amount of research on this subject and was greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Jack Hamilton extended courtesy to those who had helped with the program to the hostess and lunch committee.

4-H Achievement Days

Haldimand County 4-H homemaking clubs will be participating in the upcoming achievement days for the project "The Jacket Dress." They will be held at the Rural Youth Center, Kohler on Nov. 28, Dec. 5 and Dec. 12, 1970.

Club girls under 16 years of age have completed a dress in this project while girls over 16 sewed a dress with a jacket or vest. There were a wide selection of materials and patterns chosen. The girls particularly studied fibers and fabric construction to enable them to select fabrics wisely.

During the afternoon program, the club girls will be modelling their garments and presenting exhibits. County awards will be presented to club girls completing in six different projects.

INVESTIGATE PROBLEM TORONTO (CP) - Toronto board of health will investigate the problem of cockroaches in apartment buildings. Alderman John Sewell, a board member, said that some apartment buildings are havens for cockroaches that can travel freely along water pipes.

Jarvis Lions Club News

by Ted Oldham

The Nov. 23 meeting of Jarvis Lions was well attended and we had four guests from the Caledonia Club.

Lion Murray Fleming our international president read Lion Information No. 6. He travels over 200,000 miles visiting Lions districts on six continents. He meets with heads of state, influential people and the new media spreading the gospel of Lions service and promoting world understanding.

Turkey Raffle committees were named and the raffle tickets are available from all Lions for the $2500 prize Dec. 12.

Lion Jack Cooke reported on the health and welfare committee. Christmas baskets will be distributed with the help of the various churches.

Lion Don Leatherdale introduced our guest speaker zone chairman Martin Manix, Lion Martin spoke on membership, Leo clubs, and the eye bank.

Lion Jim Mehlenbacher thanked the speaker and presented him with a certificate of appreciation and a token gift.

The dance committee took a count of the swingers that are intending to show up for the New Years Eve Dance.

The hall renovations are just about complete, and the members on this project have done an excellent job.

The Presbyterian ladies started their catering period and as usual they served well. The Gremlins must have got into my last write up, as I inadvertently thanked the Anglican Ladies for the last catering. This should have read the CATHOLIC ladies. My apologies to Mrs. Ray Montague and all her ladies.

Hagersville Public Library Display Handcraft

An outstanding display of handwork may be seen at the Hagersville Public Library at the present time. The collection is the work of Mr. Harry Cuff of Hagersville and it is on loan to the library for two or three weeks.

The display is made from nuts and pits of fruit, and these have been fashioned into birds, turtles, dogs and other small creatures. Some are arranged on small twigs and branches, and all are engaged in activities, which Mr. Cuff has created with such skill and imagination that they seem life-like.

Other scenes of rural life, made from different kinds of wood, form a background for this interesting collection, and the whole display has been a source of great interest and pleasure to the different school groups who have visited the library during library week.
