It comes as no surprise for modern man to hear that women are no longer thought of as the weaker sex.

The outward expressions of women's liberation are seen daily in the world of business and other phases of professional life.

But the rough-and-tumble world of aggressive body contact sports has always been considered primarily a man's world.

Not so, says Dave Prothero, a referee of the Lakeshore Lacrosse Association in Toronto's western suburbs.

When it comes to lacrosse, he says, women can certainly play a mean game.

"The girls are worse than the boys when it comes to the rough stuff."

"I don't know whether it's that women are more emotional, but they can quickly lose their tempers. It's very hard to break up a women's squabble because some of them are real scrappers; they know all the tricks."

"But the fact they're scrappers doesn't mean they are bad lacrosse players. The girls have had some excellent plays in the last couple of years.

"Lacrosse is plenty rugged," conceded Nancy Lewis-Watts, a centre with Adanac Travel Services of the Beaches Lacrosse and Golden Horseshoe leagues for women which operate in the Toronto area.

"There's a lot of fighting in the game, too. Just last week I got a black eye in an incident. One of the other team's players upset me and I guess I lost my cool."

"The sport has always been this way whether the boys or girls play it.

"Lacrosse wouldn't be the same without the hitting and body contact that it has. These are the main reasons we enjoy the game - it's an excellent conditioner and fun."

Doesn't the violence bother you?"

"You don't go out looking for trouble," replied the pretty 15-year-old brown-eyed brunette. "Sometimes the team we're playing starts hacking or highsticking us and we don't settle for it."

"So we may fight or become more aggressive, but that's lacrosse."

Nancy's father looks at it differently.

Noel Lewis-Watts says: "I kind of wish she had taken up ballet or tiddly-winks. Things can get quite hectic out on the playing area especially when the girls start scrapping."

"But what is a father to do? She watched her brothers, began to play and has turned out to be a fair lacrosse player in a short time."

"Fortunately, and I guess I speak for all fathers, when the girls finish the game, they get their femininity back."

You may argue that lacrosse is not the game for your wife or daughter. But who is going to argue?

Especially with a woman who plays lacrosse.

Selkirk Sunday Evening

A large crowd assembled at the Selkirk Ball Park on Sunday evening where a bus load "The Keystone Boys" entertained with musical, instrumental and vocal talent, under the auspices of the Disciple Church (Church of Christ).

Much of their music was composed by the artists, modernizing many old gospel songs, using their own words and tunes. Also adding a touch of humor which was enjoyed.

The artists came from the United States except for one Canadian who was picked up in Belleville, Ont. Courtesy was expressed at no uncertain tones by the honking of the motor horns, the evening being cool the audience remained in their cars.

HALDIMAND COUNTY PARK

In the summer of 1971
At the Haldimand County Park
Me and my family set up camp
And made our little mark.

We found a friendly atmosphere
One always longs to find,
We received a friendly greeting
From people who are kind.

We very quickly came to know
The neighbours all around,
There aren't to many places left,
Where this warmth can be found.

We enjoyed the little wading pool
It set our minds at ease,
To watch our children safely play,
And enjoy the gentle breeze.

We tried our hand at shuffleboard,
Without any great success,
But fun was had by all I'm sure,
Before we stopped to rest.

To people who enjoy a hike,
Along a nature trail,
This one offers almost all,
That nature does unveil.

On Saturday night at the old barn dance
Fun was had by all
Everyone new how to mix,
And have a friendly ball.

To anyone who wants to know
Our stay was two months long,
We enjoyed every minute
And we murdered many a song.
