Ukrainians Celebrate Christmas And New Years Twice

WATERFORD — Ukrainian people have a chance to celebrate two times for Christmas and New Years because of a following of the old Julian calendar.

At the Ukrainian Community Centre Saturday some 150 people celebrated the New Year with balloons and noise makers. A traditional Ukrainian meal was served to the group. Special dances were held in old country style with some of the younger people in their native costume. A movement is planned to get the celebrations changed so that sacrifice will not be made by people attending the celebrations usually held on days not coinciding with the traditional holiday for the special days in this country. Canadians follow the Gregorian calendar.

The operation has been the object of controversy because of neighbors complaints to council about the odor and a possible fire hazard for the Village. About 60 persons signed a petition that was handed to council last year.

Beer outlets for the Village have been established for about 30 years. Two liquor votes held previously failed to get voters approval but in one case by a narrow margin.

Boundaries And Regional Government Study Topic

CAYUGA — Interested residents of Haldimand-Norfolk will be attending discussions this week about decisions to be made on the future of the two counties and recommendations made by a study committee.

The group will be asking questions and voicing opinions about the orientation and identification of a survey contracted for by Haldimand-Norfolk by the Ontario government.

The survey is to help determine that local opinions and desires are completely assessed before any decision about boundaries or regional government is made by the province.

Industrial projects predicted for the north shore of Lake Erie near Nanticoke has brought about an in depth study in planning for the area. The discussion will help form the basis of a general questionnaire that will be sent to the residents of the two counties later this year.

Kooky Styles Not New

If you think some of today's fashions are a bit kooky, listen to some of these gems reported in Style, the Canadian women's wear newspaper: — Underpants were worn only by "loose women" until 1840, for to don them was to make the indecent acknowledgement that one had legs.

— To make their filmy dress fabrics cling, women often sprinkled water over them, and sometimes came down with pneumonia.

— Large bonnets were worn on Sunday because it was considered indecent for a woman to show her profile in church.

— In bygone days, girls over 14 if they were engaged to be married were never supposed to wear pink. And women seldom wore white to their weddings, since in most cases the bridal dress was the only good outfit a woman might have for the whole of her adult life.

Weekly Weather

A mixture of cloud and sun for the next few days is the regional outlook of the Simcoe Weather Bureau.

A chance of light snow Saturday. Temperatures will range near normal with the lows in the teens and highs in the upper 20s and 30s.

Little day to day change is expected, said the forecaster.

Electors Endorse Liquor Lounges

JARVIS — Residents of the Village overwhelmingly endorsed a bid to establish dining lounges and liquor lounges in the municipality. The dining lounges were approved by a seven to one majority in a 247 yes to 36 no vote.

About 54 percent of some 500 eligible voters turned out despite zero weather to register their vote on the two questions.

The liquor lounge vote had almost as big a majority as the dining lounges with 241 in favor and 44 against with 23 ballots spoiled.

Explorer Inns Inc. initiated the vote with an application to council in November which was unanimously passed by the members.

The company is developing a $1.5 million project on the east side of the Village, which includes a 32-unit motor hotel containing a restaurant, banquet facilities and a liquor and dining room lounge.

Coupled with the new residential subdivision which will accommodate 86 town house sites and 34 single dwelling lots in phase one of the project.

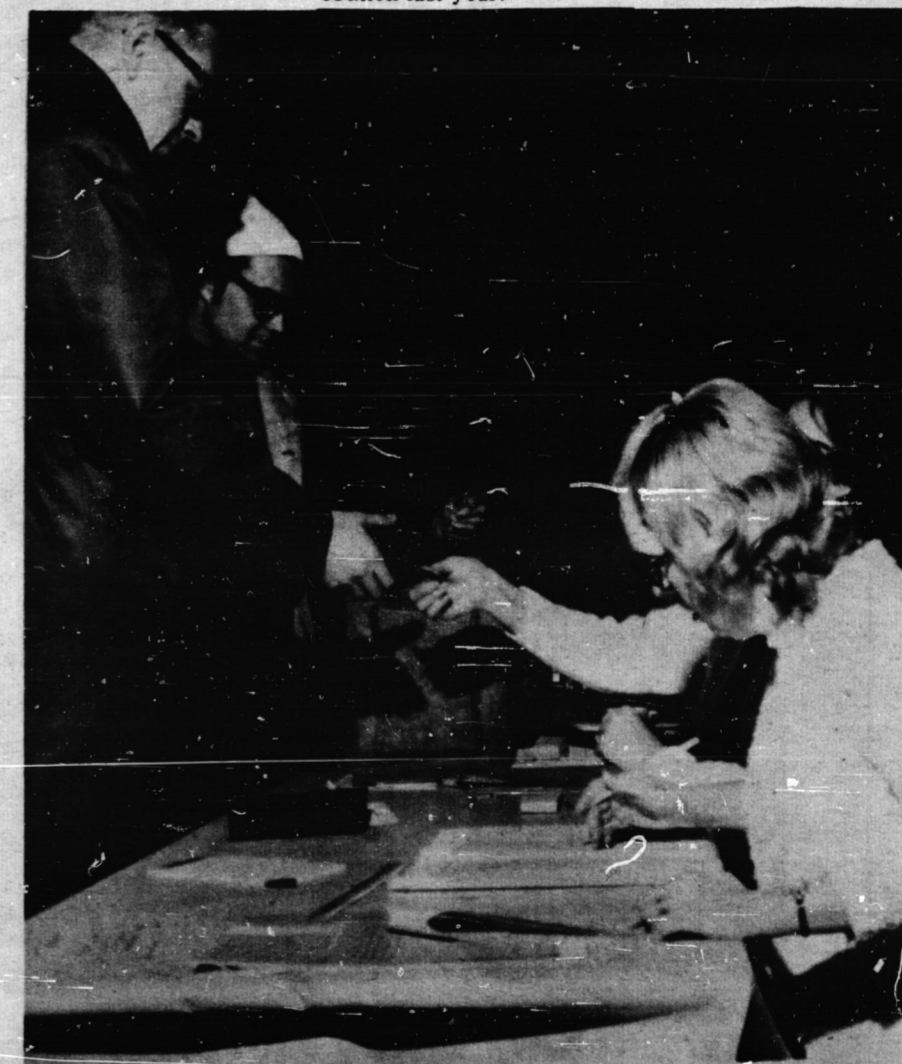

Michael Lypka, president of the company said it is expected building in the new subdivision will be done by private contractors. The housing development is subject to approval of the Ontario Municipal Board.

The Village is also constructing a new water reservoir to accommodate the new development as well as fill in demands in peak periods for the remainder of the municipality.

Eugene Mutluk, project manager, told The Record a large number of inquiries have been made about the subdivision site at the location. If the interest continues the company may consider enlarging its plans for residential development.

A commercial site on five acres adjacent to the hotel is also expected to be developed for commercial purposes that would include a plaza for retail stores.

Beer outlets for the Village have been established for about 30 years. Two liquor votes held previously failed to get voters approval but in one case by a narrow margin.

Mrs. James Davidson, marks off voters names as they checked in to vote on whether to establish liquor and dining room lounges in the Village. A total of 308 voted despite zero weather Monday. (Staff Photo)
