

There Are More Changes Coming In The Future

Hospitals move very rapidly to meet new challenges.

In the future there will be much more computerization of records of all kind, providing faster, more efficient service and enabling nurses and other staff to spend more time and attention on the patients themselves and less on routine work.

Hospitals will have even more electronic equipment for diagnosis and treatment than they have now.

Already special consultants are being established to help the hospital keep this complex equipment in top condition.

A few years ago, general hospitals had no kind of care for psychiatric patients. Today many have special psychiatric wings or floors and these psychiatric services will be extended to meet a need which is still inadequately satisfied.

Hospitals are looking very hard at the drug problem and some are already experimenting with ways in which they can establish special services. Recently a major conference of hospital people was held to discuss the matter.

Staffs of hospitals are changing. Years ago the only nurse working in a hospital was a registered nurse. Today there are nursing aides and nursing assistants as well. The next big change could be the appearance of a brand-new specialty - a doctor's assistant or nurse practitioner. This associate may be brought about by upgrading the nurse to do some of the things the doctor does now. Steps are being taken in this direction right now.

But the most important changes coming along can't be predicted... the new drugs, new equipment, new discoveries. Have you ever noticed how quickly they reach your local hospital, and are put to good use?

Substantial Increase Over 1970

More Campers Visit County Park

Haldimand County Park, situated several miles east of Hagersville, on the Lake Road, reports a substantial increase of visiting campers this year as compared to the period in 1970.

"Business has been pretty good," said Roger Field, son of Elmo Field, manager of Haldimand County Park. "We have had quite a few people from Ontario Hydro coming here, to and from hydro site. On weekends we have anywhere from 35 to 50 sites taken and through the week anywhere from 25 to 30 sites are taken.

"On the weekend we do pretty good with the picnicking. For example, last weekend we had four picnics. We sold some 170 tickets, so that would mean 170 cars were here at four persons to a car. This would amount to quite a few people."

"We are open for business on May 24 and we close on Thanksgiving Day," said Mr. Field.
