74.7% In Area Cast Ballots, Allan Returned

JAMES ALLAN
... Wines Riding

Haldimand and Norfolk voters turned out in force last Thursday to return James N. Allan, of Dunnville, as the Progressive Conservative representative at Queen's Park.

A total of 74.7 per cent of eligible voters cast their ballots in the riding.

It was the sixth straight Ontario election win for the veteran politician who has represented the riding since first elected in 1951. Mr. Allan's success scuttled the hopes of the other two party representatives, Alfred W. Judd, of Simcoe, the Liberal candidate and Thomas Tobey, of Caledonia, the New Democratic Party hopeful.

Mr. Allan topped the polls with 16,394 votes. Mr. Judd posted 7,347 votes and Mr. Tobey 4,661 votes.

It was Mr. Allan's biggest victory, according to a PC spokesman. In fact, he lost only one poll of the 156 (including the advance poll) and that was poll 95 in North Cayuga.

In 1967, Mr. Allan won the provincial election by 4,202 votes, pulling a total of 11,760 votes compared with 7,478 for George W. Baldock, Liberal, Harry Yaychuk, NDP, 2,610 and William Triska, Social Credit, 224.

Mr. Allan attributed his win "to my good friends." "I have a lot of good friends in this riding and without them you're a poor politician."

"The years ahead could very well be not the easiest years and may present a lot of challenge. In this regard I'm very happy the province has returned a majority government and that we will be able to carry on with a stable government. It's very difficult to see into the future, however, we have met problems before and have been able to forge ahead."

"Both governments (federal and provincial) are planning to make money available to keep the economy going," he said.

Speaking on the economic situation of Norfolk and Haldimand, in light of the Ontario Hydro project at Nanticoke and the so-far-stalled projects of the Steel Company of Canada and Texaco Canada Ltd., Mr. Allan said the area is a long way away from being in a slump.

"Many don't realize what a shot in the arm we've had just from Ontario Hydro alone. There are a great many people working at the Hydro site and they are living in the various communities in Norfolk and Haldimand."

"Construction will be continuing at the Hydro site and I expect Texaco will be getting underway in the not too distant future."

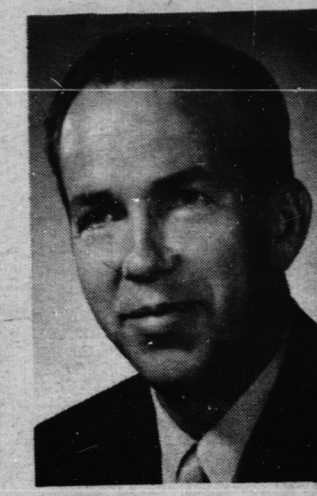

"Some delay in these projects has been good," he said, "but I should think we would be wanting to know Stelco and Texaco's intentions fairly soon."

In analysing the Liberal loss, Mr. Judd said the local campaign ran into a couple of problems the proved insurmountable. One was the "that we were swamped with money. We didn't have it and the Conservatives did. The PC campaign must have cost six or seven times what ours did. We couldn't handle the campaign because we didn't have the funds."

Plowing Match Committees Awarded

CAYUGA - As a memento of the International Plowing Match in recognition of the work of the various local committees, Haldimand County Council Friday decided to award all members of all committees a plaque.

Finance committee chairman Dr. William Austin, of Jarvis, told councillors the finance committee felt a plaque would be a suitable way of recognizing the work done by the various committees towards the plowing match held recently near Nanticoke.

Dr. Austin said it would involve about 150 plaques at $8 a plaque. "We had to go all the way with this," he said, "or not at all."

Coun. Dr. Kenneth Mustard, of Dunnville, said that "it seems like a lot of money. Is it a justifiable expense?"

Coun. Ross Slote, of Hagersville, said the awarding of the plaques "is just a one shot deal. The people on the committees will certainly appreciate it. After all we don't have an International Plowing Match every year."

Dr. Austin noted county council would be getting its money back that it advanced to the local plowing match committee. "Members of the various committees donated a lot of time and mileage and I feel they should get some recognition. After all $8 is not all that much to pay."

Warden Clayton Smith said the entire plowing match had "gone over with a bang. Let's not balk at the last minute."

The plaque will have the country crest and the person's name engraved on it.

County councillors had high praise for all those who worked on the local displays at the plowing match and extended congratulations to Janice Fox, of R.R. 5 Cayuga, who was crowned Queen of the Furrow at the plowing match banquet in Hagersville.

Council also learned that the 17,000 match books it had distributed for the plowing match had won an award at a match cover collectors' convention recently. The match covers are gold with the county's crest on it. The Trans-Canada Match Cover Club wrote asking for match books to display at its annual convention later this year.

Election Night Story: Fact or Fiction?

CAYUGA - It was a generally quiet day at the Haldimand County Council today except for some stories following hard on the heels of Thursday's provincial election.

Cayuga Reeve Ted Powell told the following story, which he insists is true. "It seems campaign workers came across a young woman who had never voted and after explaining to her what her rights were in voting she was convinced she should go to the polls and mark a ballot. She was taken to a booth, sworn in and then went and voted."

After voting and as she was leaving the polling station she was asked, "Well how does it feel to exercise your franchise?" A blank look came over her face and then she replied, "I don't know, I do push ups."

Caution Urged Halloween Night

Officially, Halloween falls on the last day of October, a Sunday this year, but area children will likely be out celebrating this event on both Friday and Saturday night.

This two-night celebration is causing some concern among the area police departments and Chief W. R. Burger, of Hagersville, stresses that since children are "very active on this night," parents and the motoring public should be made aware of certain things that could assist them in helping the children to enjoy their night safely.

Chief Burger advises:

1. Costumes worn after dark should be light in color and reflective.
2. Remove facial masks that obscure vision while crossing streets.
3. Small children should be accompanied by an adult or older person.
4. Children should not enter any premises that are unknown to them.

5. Advise parents of area and time that it is to be canvassed.
