Editorial Comment:

The Importance of STPs

The importance of proper sewage treatment facilities is being hammered home in the Village of Hagersville and it would be expected other small municipalities are taking note.

At last Monday night's council meeting a letter from the department of the environment agreed to allow a developer to build a 12 unit apartment and no more on a site that originally proposed 44 units.

R. J. McMurray, engineer, with the department, at a meeting Aug. 8 told the developers that there could be no more development at the site until the capacity of the sewage treatment plant is increased.

And he was adamant on that point. In fact it took almost two hours of discussion to get Mr. McMurray to budge on allowing even 12 units.

As he explained it, the simple fact of the matter is that the sewage treatment plant is operating way over its designed capacity. Any more residential development in the village will overload the plant to such an extent that the plant will not be treating the sewage at all, which would be of some concern to those who are downstream on the Sandusk Creek.

It would appear that with the exception of "infilling" of existing lots fronting on existing sewer lines and with the west section of the village, which is expected to get sewer and water lines later this year, the residential development of Hagersville is about to come to a grinding halt.

According to department of environment reports, the present plant is limit as to how large it can expand, being now at its maximum size. The department is now in charge of the plant and has apparently discovered some problems, that when corrected, will permit a greater amount of sewage to be treated. But not enough to permit large scale residential development.

Hagersville's only hope, it appears, lies in the direction of regional government, which might tie the village in with other small municipalities in a regional sewage treatment plant. Primary treatment could be done in the village and the effluent piped to a secondary treatment plant.

But until then, Hagersville is going to have a mighty struggle with itself deciding on whether to stay at its present size, or go ahead and push for a regional sewage treatment centre under regional government. Either way its going to be costly.

Sandusk WI

The Sandusk W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Maud Barnes on Wednesday Aug. 9, for their regular monthly meeting. Mrs. Merrill Nie, president, opened the meeting with the W.I. creed, Mary Stewart collect and Lord's prayer. Mrs. William Bray acted as secretary in the absence of that officer and read the minutes. It was decided we wouldn't have a trip this year. A letter was read about Lamb's Corner's and Sandusk W.I. to visit Grandview Lodge in September.

Mrs. Merrill Nie gave an interesting talk on the motto He who forgets the past loses the key to the future. The roll call, My First memory of Caledonia Fair, stirred up some amusing memories. Mrs. William Bray gave the topic on Caledonia Fair and some interesting history of Caledonia. Mrs. Leo Mulkins gave the life of Pauline Johnson and history of Chiefswood.

The hymn of All Nations was sung after which a few games of bingo were played.

Mrs. Merrill Nie gave the courtesy remarks.

Dear Sir:
Having watched your paper for further mention of the activities of the Union Gas Company that affects some 900 homes and cottages in Haldimand County, I thought you might be interested in what seems to me a rather unusual method of doing business.

Sincerely,
Margaret Finlayson,

Counter Clockwise

20 Years Ago,
August 14, 1952.

Thursday, July 31 was Wheatland Day in Haldimand County. Wheatgrowers from all over Southern Ontario flocked to see the different demonstrations which proved both educational and entertaining.

New tractors, combines, balers, side rakes and tillage equipment were lined up on the old Kohler airfield, which is known as the Haldimand County Rural Youth and Agricultural Centre.

One treat, which captured the spectator's interest, was the Evolution of Harvesting. Here, a few oldtimers showed their stuff with sickle and later with sickle and cradle.

Following this, to follow through in the evolution, a team of horses drew an old reaper that could have been built as early as the 1830s.

Then came the binder and finally the German combine which was supposed to be the ultimate in modern harvesting. This machine combined and baled in one operation.

Warren Keen escaped serious injury when the car he was driving was struck almost head on by an approaching vehicle four miles south of Jarvis late Saturday evening.

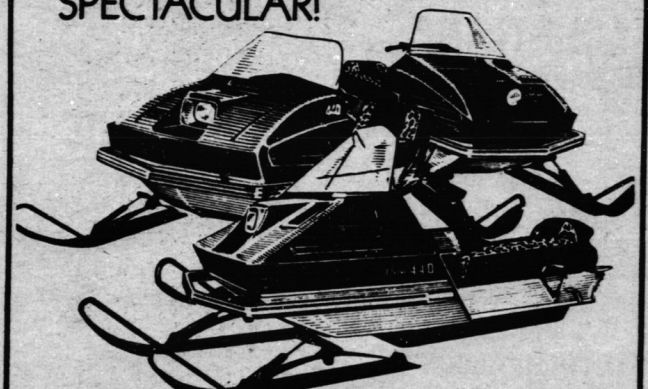

Mr. Keen was returning from Port Dover when the accident happened. Aside from a cut on his nose, Mr. Keen escaped with a severe shaking up.

Miss Anna P. Lewis, director of the Women's Institute Branch and Home Economics service of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has announced the appointment of Miss Jean Davis, as Home Economist for the counties of Lincoln, Haldimand and Welland.
