The U.C.W. of Cheapside United Church met at the home of Mrs. Charles Hamilton Thursday, Jan. 13, for their regular meeting with an attendance of 12.

Mrs. Harold Nie opened the meeting with an article on the Theme (The Bible). She told of how John Nicolson promised his mother to read his Bible every day and how he met another man who had made the same promise and they started the Gideon's Bible. The hymn "Standing at the Portal of The Opening Year" was sung followed by prayer. The roll call was answered by telling who your first Sunday school teacher was.

Mrs. Craig Werner acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. Ivan Whitford. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Arrangements were made for a pot-luck supper Monday night for the congregational meeting.

Mrs. Creaser led the worship service "Let us Worship God" followed by prayer. She chose Isaiah 53:1-3 and Psalm 119:97-105 for her scripture readings and meditation.

The offering was received and dedicated. The hymn "O Word of God Incarnate," closed the worship service.

Mrs. Harold Nie introduced the new study on Africa and Mrs.

Gerald Willis used Bible verses for the discussion groups as well as the game of Bible baseball.

Mrs. H. Nie closed the meeting with prayer and the hymn "Father Lead me Day by Day." Mrs. Arvil Nie, the new president, thanked Mrs. Harold Nie for filling the presidents position.

Mrs. Craig Werner and Mrs. Reg. Armstrong assisted the hostess in serving lunch. Mrs. William Bray made the court-esy remarks.

Early in January the annual Provincial agriculture conference took place at the University of Guelph.

The main topic under discussion was development of Canadian agriculture. This consists of a plan representing the unanimous thinking of the 10 provincial ministers of agriculture. The main speaker for this plan being Gaetan Lussier, Quebec's deputy minister of agriculture.

Lussier stated that recent difficulties in connection with production and marketing necessitates drastic reconstruction if farming does not want to continue sinking into the mire.

The plan offers a program of farm products supply management, market sharing, integrated farm credit program, control of imports through automatic surcharge on foreign food products. Lussier says this plan takes into account two dividing farm sectors. One sector is definitely embarked on the course of profitable agriculture on technically advanced farms while the others is going through adjustment which will lead to new uses of the land. Government intervention has to contend with development of viable farms, reassignment of land and assisting the transfer of people from agriculture to other activities.

The provincial ministers would not accept the Federal agriculture adjustment plan and were critical of a national marketing bill.

However, without national marketing legislation they would be unable to implement many of their planned production and marketing ideas.

Farm land consolidation proposals in the Federal and Provincial plans sound so similar they would have been written by the same people. It seems all that is really needed is a spirit of cooperation and there would be little difficulty in reaching a joint Federal-Provincial agriculture policy.

Waste Recycling Not Economical For Many Years - Childs

Recycling of waste will not be economical for many years, but may come about, at least in part, for other reasons. This was one of the comments made by Kent Childs, Ontario Department of the Environment in his address on Recycling of Waste Materials at the Jan. 10 meeting of the Ontario Institute of Agrologists, Hamilton Branch.

In his address, Mr. Childs dealt mainly with the economics and political implications of recycling waste.

In commenting on recycling paper, Mr. Childs said "The demand for recycled paper is low and is presently being met. There are a number of problems associated with recycling paper including the ink disposal problem from the de-inking process."

Mr. Childs indicated that the economics of recycling glass for uses in such things as asphalt did not hold much promise at the present time the low price of $15 per ton that the glass industry is now paying for glass bottles. Present technology also limits the use of recycling metal cans since most so called "tin cans" are made from several metals resulting in separation problems upon recycling.

Commenting on the In-House Separation of Garbage project in Burlington, Mr. Childs indicated that despite enthusiastic participation at the beginning of the project the number of people fully supporting the project has dropped to a low level after only 16 collections.

Mr. Childs noted that the Department of the Environment was in favor of recycling waste but further technology was needed before it could become widely used.

Further at the Hamilton OIA meeting the new officers for 1972 were installed by Provincial Registrar, Gordon Skinner. Ken Best of Cayuga was installed as president, David Armstrong, Ancaster, first vice-president, Harry Barrett, Hamilton as second vice-president and Gus Butt, Hamilton was installed as secretary-treasurer.

Bruce Jones and Harry Barrett were presented with certificates of membership into the Ontario Institute of Professional Agrologists.

clear the air on this matter that has been causing no little concern among those people especially who make use of the old Town Hall building.

Stan Burditt came home with a trophy and three prize ribbons from the East Hamilton Roller Canary Club Show held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday last week with only four birds entered in the contest. Inasmuch as this is the first time Mr. Burditt has entered his birds in show competition he is naturally highly elated with his success.

Mr. Burditt first became interested in canaries when he was discharged from the Army in 1946 after six years of service. He felt in the need of a hobby at that time and in the spring of 1947 he started to raise canaries. By the fall of 1949 he had over 100 birds and he found a steady sale for his stock. A misfortunate accident occurred in the fall of 1950 when an overheated gas stove destroyed all breeding stock, valued in excess of $200. He was not dismayed however, and started all over again with pure registered rollers.
