

Flood Lines

Another question asks that the GRCA reveal any future plans of erecting a dam between Cayuga and Dunnville, which would tend to make the regional flood area a legitimate reality.

Approximately 50 homeowners in Cayuga are affected by the flood lines, an area designated by the authority as an area that would be under water in the event of a flood.

Bob Baigent, spokesman for the group, said it is the opinion of the group that excessive flood conditions along the Grand River at the point in question have only occurred during the spring thaw and ice breakup.

He said the flood waters reached their highest point in the known history of the river around 1930. The present regional flood level is many feet above the level the water reached at that time.

It would appear, the group spokesman said, that the GRCA has based its calculations and theory for the regional flood area on a storm of hurricane proportions, which occur at a season of the year when there would be no obstruction in the river to hold back or dam up the water.

We have no dams or dikes in the area to give way, and in any event, the water would only rise slowly. Anyone living in this area could reach higher ground in the matter of a few minutes at the most, he said.

During hurricane Hazel, no excessive flooding occurred in this area and we doubt if we will have another storm that would drop more water in such a short time as that storm did, he said. The lines objected to are regional storm lines. Below that are the maximum observed flood lines.

The director of operations for the authority, Ilmar Kao said both lines are theoretical.

"The area was certainly not flooded that high during hurricane Hazel," he said, "but the centre of that storm was located over Toronto.

The storm line is as accurate as scientifically possible, he said.

"We simply set the line along the same topographical contours as have been observed

Refuse Egg Quotes To Feed Dealers—OFA

Feed dealers should be refused quotas to produce eggs, according to a statement released last week by the executive committee of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

"Unscrupulous feed dealers are trying to buy up egg laying facilities," the statement continues, "now that the Ontario Egg and Fowl Producers' Marketing Board has improved egg prices and a quota scheme is being developed."

The federation statement says feed dealers who buy buildings should be refused quotas.

In an interview, federation President Gordon Hill explained: "Farmers lost millions of dollars during two years of disastrous egg prices," he said bitterly. "Many sacrificed thousands of productive birds in a recent slaughter program to reduce flocks."

"Farmers should get the benefit of market improvement, not feed dealers."

Most enthusiasts are farmers who compete for the sheer enjoyment of it at their own expense, he said.

The other top pullers were Ralph Camberlain, of Bucyrus, Ohio, in the 12,000 open, pulling 159.6 feet and Jack Walter, of Carey, Ohio, in the 12,000 stock, pulling 250 feet.

flooded at other parts of the river," he said.

Mr. Kao said that although the authority does buy such property when available, the only purpose the lines serve is to insure public safety and not to make the land cheaper.

"We will not issue a permit to build or rebuild below the maximum observed line. We would like to see that area cleared out eventually so that there is no potential interference with the flow of flood waters."

"As for the area between the two lines, we require that buildings must be flood proofed so that they could not be washed away or have services cut off in the event of a massive flood," he said.

available for the ball players. "Projects that are started should be finished," he said.

He said there are "a lot of good things the village has to offer and our facilities are second to none, but there are things that are just not getting done. We need a co-ordinator along these lines."

Dr. Vernon suggested one method might be to set up a joint parks and recreation committee with the existing groups acting as sub-committees.

He said it was obvious "there is a great deal of volunteer effort in the village and you don't want to scuttle that because it can't be replaced."

"But it could be more manageable if you can get down to a parks and recreation board," he said. A joint committee could have a maximum of 12 members, two of which would be from council.

It was suggested the maintenance of the various recreational facilities could be handled.

died by the works department of the village by hiring additional full time personnel to take over the duties of the existing part time maintenance workers. Dr. Vernon said this "might solve your problems now, but it could be difficult in the future when you begin to examine your programs."

He said there is a "strong trend now towards greater use of the recreational facilities in schools. The Norfolk board of education is fully co-operating with the various recreation committees. "Many kinds of things like this can begin to happen," he said.

Rebuilding Old Car Highlight Of Golden Horseshoe City

Most August calendars are now circled for the weekend of August 5-6-7 for the Golden Horseshoe City Show in Caledonia. Many have asked how Golden Horseshoe City reached the status of a city. With those 20,000 visitors registering each year since 1967, the Mayor, Fred Thompson, declared that the Gas-Era Village had finally reached the status of a city back in 1970. Hence, Golden Horseshoe City with such street names as, Golden Avenue and City Hall, Macdonald's Farm Lane, Threshing Drive, Saw Mill Road and Swap Corner.

One of the new highlights this year is the garage, manned by Andy McIntyre and his "stand-by", a well-known mechanic from Caledonia. Old shop manuals, signs and garage equipment will be on display and possibly old license plates.

But the highlight will not only be the display there, but the actual two-day operation on a 33-year-old veteran of by-gone days, a 1939 Buick Sedan, unrestored, decrepit, being minus one fender, but unshaken in all the battle of the road.

The public will be able to actually see the many operational feats that may be vital to restore a vintage car of yesterday. The operation, itself, will take on the atmosphere of the striving goal of the mechanics is that they hope to have the Buick in purring order for the big final parade on Civic Holiday Monday.

This year, Caledonia will be having its 6th Civic Week Show. It is a coincidence that Centennial Civic Holiday was on Aug. 7, as it is this year. The highlight of the show then was the mammoth March of Time Parade, in which every county town and village participated.

And now, five years later, the Golden Horseshoe Society, sponsors of the show, invite you to see how time has marched in the presentation of a bigger and better show.

Much credit can be given to the many workers each year who help maintain the Centennial Days of '67 and who have incorporated them into the Golden Horseshoe Antique Society, which proudly claims membership all over the Niagara region, most of the surrounding counties and even across the border.

Plans are well under way for another big weekend show with all the committees working hard-at-it.

This year many of the members will be wearing new Golden Horseshoe jackets with the club insignia, others will be hauling out their century-old costumes, while still others will be taking their 1967 Centennial outfits off the hook.

Golden Horseshoe City 1972 opens with a Friday August 4 dance at Cayuga High School. Dancing begins at 9 p.m. There is a big turn out expected to dance to the music of the Haldimand County Ramblers who will be playing both popular and old time music.

This year there will be prizes for Old Time Costumes and it is expected there will be a good turn out of the costumes that were used during the Centennial celebrations held in 1967.

Vince Mountford, of Brampton, will be the emcee for the evening.
