

Poor Response To OHC Form In Jarvis

Barely ten per cent of a questionnaire survey undertaken by the village and the Ontario Housing Corporation to assess the need for OHC-sponsored housing developments, were returned by local rate-payers.

Speaking on the poor response to the survey, Clerk Robert Lysch told council members at a meeting Tuesday night only 11 out of the 90 forms mailed were returned.

"Unfortunately it appears that the people on our mailing list are not the ones who would be interested in living in a development," said the clerk. "It doesn't give any indication of the people who work in the area who might be interested in settling in Jarvis."

According to the OHC, at least 20 replies must be received from such a survey and half of those must indicate an interest and be in need of housing in a municipality. Only six of the 11 replies to the Jarvis survey showed an interest in a housing project.

Reeve William Austin told council the issue should "be shelved" for the interim until a more effective survey can be undertaken for the village. Council members voted to support the reeve's stand.

Coun. Klaas Druyff opposed the OHC development, briefly suggesting the apartments or houses could create a vacuum in the existing

The seige began after the man had fired at relatives in his Caledonia home. Nine hours later it was over when he walked out of the house unarmed after he allowed one of his brothers and a woman to enter the house to talk to him.

The incident apparently began as an argument between the man, his wife and his father-in-law, all living in the same house.

When shots were fired, the wife and father-in-law ran

The service would cost $26.50 a day or $9,672.50 a year. On a per business basis it would be about 75 cents a day. Reeve Austin told council the total expenditure would almost equal the total business tax for the entire village and suggested that it might be too expensive for council to undertake.

"Some of the merchants have asked that we pay for this type of security out of their business tax but they
