

Knox Celebrates 116th Anniversary

Oct. 29 saw the culmination of months of planning and preparation at the Jarvis Presbyterian Church when Knox celebrated its 116th Anniversary.

In spite of the flurry of the finishing hours of a federal election, the overwhelming build-up of fall programming in the community, the closing out of the World Series, people still found time to think about special guests, a place in church with all the other friends of the years, a special guest to present a timely message.

This year, Rev. Albert E. Bailey, M.A., Th. D. senior consultant (educational) to the Board of Christian Education, the Presbyterian Church in Canada, presented two of the most meaningful messages ever delivered to the congregation of Knox. The subject for the 11 a.m. service, Not Beating the Air is found in the revised standard version, Corinthians 13:1-26. Paul is telling his readers to enter into the fight of faith as one who competes for the first prize. Only one will win it; but let everyone go forward to be the winner.

Music beautifully appropriate for a service offering thanks to the to the providence of God through the years included Holy Spirit, Faithful Guide, the full choir anthem and a duet harmony of Ernest Newman's My Task.

As the Senior Educational Consultant, Dr. Bailey's task includes that of clarifying goals and purpose in the over-all Church programming.

The steps in quality education were featured in a graphic manner on the end wall of the sanctuary from an over-head projector so that everyone present could see as they listened. The basic need is to clarify the purpose of the church people and to be able to say why; to explore the needs of the community, to recognize our challenge, to define the immediate areas of concern, to set goals for this time, to specify objectives, to develop the program and the means of reaching our goal, and then to evaluate the work done.

This takes us back again to the original purpose and we begin again by clarifying the next goal, the next objective.

The terrible consequences of unreal goals and programming were made clear during the interviews of the afternoon.

"Parents who bring their children to the church or church school and having dropped the children off, go on to something else, are teaching their children, among other things, that the church and school is not important."

"A new wind of the Spirit is blowing through the affairs of humanity these days," said Dr. Bailey in the evening message, which he had entitled A New Reformation.

"All the signs of a hunger for harmony in the world; all the signs of protest against the old authoritarian ways are growing more evident. Those social groups who for centuries have accepted the rigid custom and tradition of church and government are no longer willing to go along with it."

"This is a day of re-awakening of the necessity of a rule of the Spirit of God and of the freedom of the human spirit to be ruled by that Holy Spirit," he said.

I Walked To-day Where Jesus Walked, was the anthem.

Deputy District Governor Visits Jarvis Lions

The Oct. 23 meeting of the Jarvis Lions Club was highlighted by the presence of Deputy District Governor Morton Cooper, of Tillsonburg, who made his official visit.

He was accompanied by three Tillsonburg Lions. His address centred around his own experiences by becoming involved in helping others. He was thanked by Past President Neale Hoover who presented him with a gift.

The Deputy Governor then presented 57 members with perfect attendance buttons for the year 1971-72. Lions Jack Brohman and Oscar Phillips were presented with five year perfect attendance pins and Lion Pres. Bruce Miller and 1st Vice Pres. Eugene Montague with 10 year perfect attendance pins.

Zone chairman Ted Montague presented 3rd Vice President Don Mitchell with the key member award. This award is given for sponsoring two members who have remained active Lions. He sponsored Lions Bob Payne and Tom McBride.

Past President Art Blight reported that three members of the Easter Seal Committee had attended a meeting in Niagara Falls at which reports on the 1972 campaign were given and plans made for the 1973 campaign. Plans have been finalized for the Remembrance Day Service. The parade will form up at the Municipal Building at 2 p.m. with the service in St. Paul's Anglican Church at 2.30 p.m. with the service in St. Paul's Anglican Church at 2.30 p.m. The speaker will be the Rev. Clifford Waite.

Decisive Win In Riding

The question of who is to form a government in Canada still remains, as of Wednesday, two days after the federal election which saw the Progressive Conservatives slash the Trudeau Liberals to 108 seats to the PCs' 109.

While the rest of the country awaits the outcome, there is no question as to who won Norfolk - Haldimand riding.

Progressive Conservative incumbent William Knowles swept the rug out from under the opposition and handed the hard-working Liberals a 7,000 vote thumping, surprising even the unflappable Mr. Knowles.

It was without question the tobacco vote of Norfolk County that defeated the energetic Dr. David Marshall, of Cayuga. While he lost in native Haldimand, it was only by a slim margin.

Mr. Knowles has just cause to be happy with his victory, along with the tremendous upset of the Liberals nationally, but Dr. Marshall can also feel justly proud of his campaign.

It was the type of fast moving campaign that could well have won the riding for the Liberals in 1968 when Mr. Knowles took it away from them with a 1,700 vote margin.

It was also a campaign that rebuilt a less than energetic Liberal organization.

The New Democratic Party candidate Ede Pos, predictably a loser in the riding, maintained the NDP position, despite the pressure of the campaigns from the two major parties.

David Mallory's campaign on behalf of the Social Credit served only to keep the party name in front of the electorate.

In view of a minority government in Canada, which might well end in a spring election, this may prove to be not a bad tactic.

Mr. Knowles in the past four years has served the riding well as a member of the Opposition. With the distinct possibility that the PCs might form the government, Mr. Knowles could well become a strong member and spokesman for this riding.

Cigarette Smoking

In a recent article I quoted from a report issued by the National Research Council of the United States on air pollution and cancer. The scientists who issued the report stated that "These studies consistently show urban lung cancer death rates twice those found in the corresponding rural areas."

The one note that runs through the report is that, while cigarette smoking may cause some lung cancer, the chief offender is urban air pollution. In other words, the polluted air of the city as compared with the purer air over the farm and rural life as a whole is a greater cause of lung cancer than cigarette smoking.

In pursuit of the facts for their report they took a look at the international scene. "British immigrants had a lower death rate than that observed for the English populations (outside the cities), but greater than that for the native Americans."

They also found that Italy has a somewhat clearer air than in Britain, and "Italian immigrants had a slightly greater lung cancer death rate than those remaining in Italy but considerably less than native Americans and immigrants from the United Kingdom."

The NRC cited two British studies of migrants from Britain to New Zealand and South Africa where the migrant began smoking more cigarettes than they had in Britain. Despite their increased smoking, the migrants suffered less from lung cancer than the men they left behind in Britain.

The effect of smoking cigarettes depends not on the fact that you smoke, but on how many you smoke. There appears to be some people who smoke a packet in one day, or even more. They are not in the same class as the person who smokes only a few a day.

Cigarettes are like beer or wine, most use them moderately, those who drink to excess are called drunkards and usually despised. In the same way those who smoke to excess should be called "smokards" and regarded accordingly.

Nineteen representatives of community organizations were present in the Town Hall last night at a meeting called by Lea Marshall, chairman of the Lions Club committee for the building of a new Community Hall.

The discussion dealt with the many problems involved in the undertaking and a vote indicated that the organizations present were unanimous in the opinion that efforts should be continued and positive action taken to make the undertaking a reality.

A committee of six was named, consisting of Lea Marshall, Albert Pond, Edward Montague, Art Blight, George Walker and Mrs. A. B. Blight to draw up plans and secure costs on a Community Hall built along the lines of the Barton Community Hall in Barton Township.

If the students of the Jarvis Public School react as efficiently in a case of actual fire as they did at the fire drill last Friday there should be no danger to human life in the event of a fire at the school.

Under the direction of Fire Chief Banks the alarm was sounded last Friday morning during a lesson period and in exactly 43 seconds the 122 pupils were out of the school. This is the result of training by the teachers at regular intervals during the school year.

Dear Sir:

It is most unfortunate that the Government of Quebec should have approved, indeed initiated, a mass attack on the wolf population in the Province of Quebec.

The recent announcement that the Government proposes to sponsor a special wolf hunting season is bad enough, but the news that the Government plans to use cruel traps, and even more cruel poisons to eliminate these animals is almost incredible.

The Department of Tourism, Fish & Game is undoubtedly concerned with attracting "Sportsmen" to the Province of Quebec and no doubt spends a large amount of money trying to achieve that end. The effect of the recent announcement has been to bring to the Province of Quebec more bad publicity than they have been able to achieve by almost any other problem.

Throughout Canada, and indeed North America, the reaction is beginning to build up. Canada's reputation abroad suffered badly enough through the seal hunting controversy, but now we are being once again reviled as cruel and backward in our approach to wildlife.

Perhaps, even harder to take is the very strong suggestion that not only are we cruel and backward but rather stupid as well since we obviously believe in the simple equation, "less wolves more deer."

The prime concern of the Department is to provide enough deer for people to kill in such a way that valuable dollars are brought into Quebec and left there. This must be the case, because if not, and if the real concern is the welfare of the deer population, then the simple answer is to prohibit deer hunting.

If the Government of Quebec would simply suspend the killing of wolves, deer and other animals, the natural balance would very quickly be restored.

I find it very hard indeed to have any sympathy for the "bleeding heart" who cries into his beer that the poor little deer must be protected so that he can go out and kill them when the time is ripe.

yours truly,
T. I. Hughes,
General Manager.

Dear Sir:

There seems to be a total lack of thought for others in recent works carried out in my area of the Lake Erie waterfront.

The tenants of the flats at Hickory Creek have taken the brunt of such careless thinking. The new road between Hydro and Texaco was ditched to run through the swale traversing the Texaco property which in turn travels on down the flats. The drainage of the lakefront road was also directed down this way. There is one culvert about two feet high by four feet wide to handle this heavy runoff. This understandably causes the water to back up and overflow the area roads.

This culvert enters into the creek which also drains the property to the north and east. This coupled with the build up of sand at the lakeshore bridge creates a mess for the properties on the flats.

I have owned property there since 1959 and conditions have progressively gotten worse due to the total lack of planning. At one time there was a cement wall on the right side running to the lake which was broken up and washed away by a storm.

The wall was never replaced, resulting in the ruination of a good beach on the right side. If nothing is done to alleviate these conditions the taxpayers in this area stand a big chance of losing their cottage and property.

Sincerely,
James J. Johnstone,
R.R. 2, Nanticoke,
10 Elm Street,
Brantford.
