

Friends N' Neighbours

Mrs. Edith Hudson, aged 90, has given up her apartment in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pennings on Main St. N. and will make her home with her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. William Reynolds (Dorothy). Mrs. Hudson was a native of Skipton, Yorkshire, England and has been in Canada many years, living first in Saskatchewan where her son resides and coming to Jarvis following the death of her husband. Her many friends here will miss her.

The ladies of B.I.C. church in Cheapside are busy quilting at the home of Marjorie Heise.

Attendance at the Selkirk Community Hall on Sunday afternoon in support of Library week for the Walpole-Rainham Library was very disappointing. Mrs. Ben Woodruff led the singing song accompanied by Mrs. Elmo Murphy. Mrs. Phillip Hare with her group of young people also put on a musical treat.

Mrs. Clayton Weaver, President of Lambs Corners W.I. is still a patient in West Haldimand Hospital.

There was a shower in Cheapside Community Hall for newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bartlett.

The former driveway at the south west side of the church has been filled in with new topsoil and seeded for lawn.

Mrs. Wilfred Kenny of Welland visited with Mrs. Mabel McLeod in Jarvis over the weekend.

Mrs. A. King of Lancashire, England is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Oldham and family.

Those from Jarvis who attended the annual meeting of Norfolk Unit, Canadian Cancer society held in St. Bernard's Church Waterford on Monday evening were Mrs. Harry Preston, Mrs. Mary Anderson, Mrs. Ross Dossier, Mrs. R. A. Miller, Mrs. Harry Belbeck, Mrs. J. S. Mitchell, Mrs. Earl Stallwood and Mrs. Roy Mitchell.

Jarvis annual Remembrance Day Service 1972 marks the beginning of an annual rotation among the local churches.

The Lions Club representatives working in liaison with the Clergy and the program Planning Commitee agreed that with the lessening number of Veterans and the consequent smaller crowds attending these services it was not necessary to restrict service of worship to the generous spacing capacity of Knox Church.

Therefore the planning committee wish to announce that for this year the host church will be St. Paul's Anglican. (Next year the choice may go either to Wesley United Church or to Ebenezer Christian Reformed Church). The speaker will be Clifford F. Waite, DFC, M.A., B.D., M. Ed., head of English Department Port Dover Composite School.

Clergy of all local churches will also take part including the Roman Catholic, the United, the Christian Reformed, the Anglican and the Presbyterian.

The parade, weather permitting, will form up at the rear of the community centre at 2 p.m., service will be at 2.30 p.m.

Congratulations Chevies

The Jarvis Chevies have brought another mark of distinction to the village by winning the OASA Intermediate B Championship in two games against Elliott Lake.

Winning championships is beginning to be a habit for the Chevies, having won this title for the fifth time.

A winning team engenders loyal, in some cases fanatic, fan support, and like the Canadians who travelled to Moscow for the Canada-Russia hockey games, Jarvis fans have proven most loyal. Sitting through a ball game in only slightly above freezing weather is the mark of any true fan of the game.

Jarvis has every right to be proud of the Chevies for bringing glory not only to themselves as a team and individuals, but also for showing that Jarvis is something more than a small crossroads village on a map.

Perhaps it is the fan support for athletics in the village that lies behind the Jarvis Lions Club latest proposed venture - to build an artificial ice rink.

If Jarvis can produce top ball players, there is little reason to suspect it cannot produce equally top-notch hockey players.

In a venture such as this fan loyalty cannot stop at merely attending games, but will have to reach deeper, into the pocketbooks.

Congratulations are extended to the Chevies on their excellent performance and to the Jarvis Lions Club for proposing another avenue of sports participation in the community.

At Last

At last the other side of the story regarding the connection between cigarette smoking and lung cancer has been told, and by a very learned and respectable authority.

On Sept. 11, 1972, the Hamilton "Spectator" published extracts from a report issued by the National Research Council of the United States, which is described as the "research arm" of the National Academy of Science of the U.S. The upshot of this report is that air pollution is a greater source of lung cancer than is cigarette smoking.

Here is how the Spectator summarizes the report: "In one of the most complete and conclusive reports on air pollution issued in the United States, the NRC said that deaths from lung cancer in the cities is twice that of the country-side, largely because city air is foul with 15 times as much pollutant as country air."

Quoting directly from the report we have this: "It is clear that increased lung cancer mortality is generally associated with urban living. This relation does not appear to be accountable solely in terms of differences in smoking habits."

The NRC conducted experiments in Ohio, New York, Iowa and Connecticut and found that these had all shown twice as many cancer deaths in the cities than in the rural regions. A pair of nation-wide studies revealed that lung cancer declined with distance from the city, being highest inside the cities, next in the suburbs and lowest on the farms.

"These studies," the NRC states, "provide some basis for concluding that the changes in lung cancer death rates are related to more than cigarette smoking, that is, an urban factor."

The NRC defined air pollution "as a mix of irritants such as sulphur dioxide and combustion products such as benzo-pyrene which is carried into the air by soot and which is a known cancer causing agent."

Most people like to get in on something new, especially when it is declared to be based on scientific research, but what beats me is that so many doctors also jumped on the band wagon.

Letter Box

Dear Sir:

I am heartily in agreement with a recently published report of Dr. Washburn, director of the Haldimand-Norfolk Health Unit, that pollution in high density areas along Lake Erie, is a health hazard, and I do not approve of cottagers who use old and substandard means of sanitation.

I do not want to add to the pollution problem in any way, but I disagree with Dr. Washburn, when he rejects holding tanks as one solution. He states that they are too costly to operate.

I am one of the cottagers allowed a holding tank. This tank has been in operation for over a year. After an installation cost of about $450.00, we'll below the cost of the extensive tile bed system now required by the health authorities, our cost of operation has worked out to about $25 per month in the peak summer period. Should we require its use the rest of the year, I felt that the cost would drop to about $12 per month.

Nanticoke

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Elliott and family of Williamsford, Ont. were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dennis for Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Tomkins spent a few days this week, with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Tomkins, at Sebring, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bryant of Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dennis spent Saturday in Buffalo, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Somers and Mary were guests of Miss Stella Pratten, for Thanksgiving Dinner on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wray Dennis and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Vokes spent a few days in northern Ontario this week.

Mrs. Alta Saunders returned home after spending a week with her grandson and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Lindsay of Cobourg.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Somers and family of Dorchester, had Thanksgiving dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Somers on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vokes of Port Rowan were visiting in the village on Thursday. Sympathy is extended to the family and relatives of the late Mrs. Alice Meade, who was buried on Saturday.

Mrs. Meade was a resident of this area for many years, and had moved to Port Dover a few years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hedges have returned from a hunting trip at Poplar Point on Long Point Lake and on returning spent Thanksgiving weekend with her sister, Mrs. Verla Currie and family at Loring.

If at present there is a shortage of disposal sites, a point on which I would need convincing, why not truck the effluent to the nearest sewage disposal system?

If the present sewage disposal systems are not able to absorb this additional use - then it would seem that all the communities so served are in trouble, for they cannot take care of their own natural growth.

Therefore, they need expanded sewage disposal systems, and these could be built to include capacity for holding tank disposals as well.

Dr. Washburn concedes that "it may be economically feasible to install proper sewage treatment and sanitary sewer systems at Peacock, Hoover's and Featherstone Points."

Why not make these systems large enough to take care of the "strip development along large sections of the lakefront" adjoining their locations?

I understand that Guelph University has a pilot project, presently in operation, that turns such waste into valuable fertilizer. Perhaps this is an avenue that the authorities should be exploring, and rather than effluent being a cost to the tax payers, it could become a source of revenue.

Yours very truly,
 Howard Finlayson,
 Woods Point,
 R.R. 2, Nanticoke.
