

People's Choices Vary On Satellite City Location

The Haldimand-Norfolk Study recommends a satellite city be located in Woodhouse township between Port Dover and Simcoe.

However, private developers think the best site for residential development would be in Walpole-Townsend townships, northwest of Jarvis, where they have optioned 14,000 acres of land.

The consortium, comprised of Victoria Wood Development Corporation Inc., Sifton Properties Ltd., Revenue Properties Company Ltd. and the Metropolitan Trust Company, recently held a meeting with the Haldimand-Norfolk Joint Study committee (area politicians) to explain the reasons behind their site selection. They feel the choice should be up to the people.

The Record asked area people where they would prefer to see a satellite city located if they have a choice.

Mrs. P. Bartlett, Jarvis: I think it is up to those who are planning it. They have studied and done a lot of work on choosing a site - so they should know best.

Mrs. W. Addison, R. R. 1 Jarvis: It doesn't make any difference because I wouldn't be affected. However, I think the location of the best farm land and water and sewage availability should be taken into consideration.

Mr. G. Anderson, R. R. 4, Simcoe: It doesn't make any difference.

Mrs. J. Anderson, R. R. 1, Jarvis: My husband and I think the Cherkas site (developers) is the better location because it is more locally situated here than the other area (Woodhouse). It is also better situated for the industry located here and for getting to Hamilton, Brantford, Jarvis and Hagersville.

Mrs. F. Belzner, Jarvis: Naturally I would like to see a satellite city in the Jarvis area because we're living here. It could help Jarvis.

Mr. L. Best, R. R. 1, Jarvis: I would like to see it out of the county altogether. I don't think it will be good for this area. We're farming. See Page 6, Col. 1

Fishing, Swimming, Etc. Planned For The Holidays

Summer '73 - A time for camping, travelling, barbecuing and sunbathing is finally here. The Record asked a few Jarvis young people in the park, on the street and at school picking up their report cards what plans they had for their summer vacation. Their answers are reported here and inside the paper.

Kristine Rungis (age 10) - Tomorrow (Thurs.) we're going to Michigan. Next week I'm going to a camp near Milton and then I'm going to take swimming lessons in Hagersville.

Linda Fleming (age 14) - I'm babysitting during the summer and I might be picking tomatoes later on. I'll go swimming a lot too.

Angela Bartlett (age 7) - I'll probably go fishing and swimming a lot. And, I'm going to play with the neighbours. See Page 6, Col. 1

Hagersville Crowded July 2nd

Ideal weather - warm and bright - contributed towards making the Hagersville Lion's Club Dominion Day festivities a big success on Monday, July 2nd.

A large crowd crammed med village streets to see the parade, complete with floats, band, horses, boats and kids, which began at 1 p.m.

Throughout the afternoon and evening, the park was filled with people enjoying music, games, a beef barbecue, beer garden, T-ball, a karate demonstration, pool activities and a variety show with Paul Hanover acting as

"Some people look at a lot of things and say why. You look at things and say why not" . . . was written in the guest log of a new specialty shop opened in Hagersville on Friday.

And, that is one reason why Pam Anderson, 27, and Richard, 33, have started the Antiqueria & Emporium on Highway 6 in front of Laidlaw Transport, Richard told the Record Monday. Also, the brother and sister were both born and raised in Hagersville.
