Fourth Down For Pink Petunias

The fourth meeting of the Pink Petunias 4-H Club was held at Mrs. Orvil Walker's on Tuesday, July 3 at 7:30 p.m. Six members were present.

Everyone rose and opened the meeting by saying the 4-H Pledge. Linda Church read the minutes from meeting three. Heather Stone adopted them as read and correct.

Chris Mitchell reported that we have $26.84 in the treasury. The Roll Call - "Control of one insect I have had in my garden" - and the Home Assignments were taken up.

Ideas were discussed for a demonstration instead of a skit for our club on Achievement Day.

We will have our next meeting as soon as the cucumbers are ready for pickling and tomatoes are available.

The girls decided to get a bouquet of flowers to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Walker on their twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary. We served at their celebration on July 7, 1973.

Joan Church adjourned the business section.

ned the business section.

Mrs. Walker discussed various ways of serving vegetables. She also told us that when pickling, soft water should always be used, as water containing chlorine or other additives or natural minerals will make the pickles soft in texture. Mrs. Walker demonstrated freezing strawberries and Linda showed the girls how to freeze peas.

Farm Hazards

It is a fact that the farm and rural population of Canada is declining. It's also a fact that the accidental death rate on Canadian farms remains 20 percent higher than the national average.

Farm Safety Week, July 25 to 31, sponsored by the Canada Safety Council in co-operation with the Canada Department of Agriculture, points up these facts and stresses the need for increased attention to safety in the farm environment. The Canada Safety Council makes available, through provincial safety councils, booklets, pamphlets and leaflets giving advice on how farm accidents can be avoided.

In one year, farm accidents take the lives of approximately 1,400 Canadian farm and rural residents, injure another 25,000 and permanently disable some 1,500 farm people.

Farming today is largely a mechanized operation and while mechanization has helped to bring about increased agricultural productivity and made life a little easier for the farmer, it also has increased the hazards on and about the farm. There are inherent hazards in all types of machinery, but the biggest cause of farm machinery accidents is still human error - ignorance of, or failure to follow, safe operating practices.

The farm machinery fatalities per 100,000 farmers have doubled in the last decade. Tractors, the most common piece of farm machinery, are involved in 78 percent of the fatal machinery accidents and more than half of these are overturn accidents.

Since tractor overturns are frequent, a greater use of overhead protective frames (roll-bars) and crush-resistant cabs is needed on farm tractors.

Other farm machines commonly involved in fatal accidents are combines, balers, corn pickers, forage harvesters, grain augers and spreaders.

Failure to keep guards and shielding in place or attempting to service equipment while it is still running are among the most common causes of farm machinery accidents. Safety guards are there to be used. To ignore them is to run the high risk of a very serious, and possibly fatal, accident.

Children and young people who lack the physical capacity, the experience, or the judgement, should not be allowed to operate tractors and farm machinery. It's a distressing fact that youngsters in the under-10 age group account for 10 percent of the farm machinery deaths and another 16 percent involve the 10-19 age group. Farm machines are meant to be working tools and not used for joy rides. Don't allow children or even adults to ride as passengers. Falling off moving equipment is another common farm accident.

Only a few of the many hazards to be faced in the farm and rural community have been touched on here. No mention has been made of the care needed in the handling and storing of fuels, oils, greases and agricultural chemicals, nor of the potential dangers to be met and overcome within the farm home itself, nor of the care and courtesy needed when driving tractors, farm machinery or the family car on the highway or on rural roads. Nearly 30 percent of the accidents involving rural residents occur off the farm.

What this means is that all Canadians, whether engaged directly or indirectly with the farming industry, must accept their responsibility to help "weed out farm hazards." The intolerably high accident rate among Canada's rural population must be reduced. The Canada Safety Council's Farm Safety Week is a reminder that we must all "pitch in" if we are to achieve this aim. It will take a concerted effort but it can be done.

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

HE'S CHEERFUL AND HEALTHY

Ricky is shy with strangers but managed to muster up a little smile for the photographer. Among people he knows he is cheerful and contented, usually easy going and with just an occasional outburst of temper when things don't go his way.

Ricky is four, Anglo-Saxon in origin. Short and stocky, he has light brown hair, blue eyes and fair skin.

Ricky's health is good, with only the odd attack of tonsillitis to bother him. He is active in play, loves to dance and manages to invent satisfying games for himself when nobody is around.

Ricky always watches Sesame Street and enjoys TV cartoons. He plays a good deal with small cars, making the appropriate sounds.

Though he's a sturdy boy, Ricky's mental development is behind the average for his age and he will need special education.

It is hoped an adopting family will be found where Ricky will find loving warmth and where he will be able to develop at his own pace.

To inquire about adopting Ricky, please write to Today's Child, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. For general adoption information, please contact your local Children's Aid Society.

It Says Here...

THOUGHT

What value has thought in meaning? Without its' being framed in word. And offered to share for others thinking. Only but to be, lost thought unheard.

Isn't it only by sharing thought? We can find full human living. And understand what experience has taught. Thus find thought's true rewarded meaning. by Roy Hagan

Counter Clockwise

Jan. 1, 1890
Hagersville - About 5:30 yesterday the town was startled by the report that Mr. W. Benn, butcher of this town, had shot himself. Early in the afternoon he had complained of not feeling well. Going to his room he locked the door and lying on the bed, he applied the muzzle of his revolver to his mouth and fired. The ball passed through the right tonsil and into his neck. He gives no reason for the rash act, but it is believed that mental depression caused by business reverses is the cause. He is expected to recover.

Cheapside Notes - Christmas was very quiet in town.

Nablo and Bodell did quite a rushing business the day before Christmas.

There was a grand hop at the opera on Christmas eve, and the evening was appreciated by all present.

The Jones family also gave one of their open air concerts. Harry excels well on the harp. Mrs. C. is out of wood and it would look better if J. W. would bring her some so neighbours would not have to supply the necessary household requirements for her.

Jan. 8, 1890
Walpole Municipal Election - The election on Monday resulted in a clean sweep for the Reform Party. Jose W. Holmes was re-elected Reeve; Solomon Winger, 1st Deputy; W. F. Smith, 2nd Deputy; W. F. Clark, and Joseph Stonehouse, Councillors.

O.P.P. Report

During this period of youth on July 7th, north of Hagersville. The owners have not been located. The bicycles are held at this Detachment.

Attention has been drawn to the numerous Liquor Control Act violations occurring in the area parks where people enter for the day and consume alcoholic beverages in the picnic areas. This is a violation of Section 32 of the Liquor Control Act. However, this does not prevent consumption on a camp sight where campers have a temporary residence.

Prov. Const. Q. Boon is investigating two bicycles which were found by a Hagersville
