Golden Horseshoe City Is A 'Yesteryear' Village

CALEDONIA - host town to the Golden Horseshoe Antique Society - is for one big week-end of the year, a 'yesteryear village of authentic buildings, a beautiful town on the banks of the Grand River and also a City with a Mayor and City Hall. No other town in the Province of Ontario can boast in such a three-fold manner.
This year Civic Holiday Week-end 'kicks-off and tips-up' with a Gas Era Ball under the chairmanship of member David Banks, of Hagersville. Plans are well in order and special prizes will be given for yesteryear costumes.
Those who do not trip the 'light fantastic' will be making 'ready' the shops along Golden Avenue, one of which will be the Wool Shoppe with Mrs. Hugh Clark of the Indian Line Log Cabin operating her authentic loom. Weaving has fast become a very fascinating hobby and Coral-at-the-loom will take you back to Great-Grandmother's day when spinning and weaving was the all important pioneer task for the woman folk.
Another new feature of the yesteryear village will be the Golden Valley Church with Pastor Hugh Clark in charge. Strains of "There's a church in the Valley by the wildwood" will be played on the old church organ. If you are a tenor, bring along a bass friend, if you are a soprano bring along an alto friend and sing with Pastor Clark the old Gospel songs of yesteryear. If you are just not the singing type, then pause and pray for sweet harmony! As well as the Golden Valley Church, there will be the annual Sunday evening church service conducted by the Christian Reformed Church in York.
Brochures are now printed and distributed to most outlets outlining the highlights of this, our annual Civic Holiday Week-end Show in Haldimand County. Our theme for the show might well be: Yesterday - an album Golden pictures of the Past. Today - we bring them back To cherish while they last.

Editorial

FOOD INCREASES
"You guessed it... food went up again" was the headline splashed on the front page of the Spectator one day last week.
The article featured another Consumer Price Index jump in the cost of food. It cried over the information that - "in the twelve months since June 1972, the total index has risen by 8.1 per cent while food prices in the same period have skyrocketed by 16.7 per cent." However, the situation which could give these figures more relevance are missing.
How much did the family income increase by? Are food costs merely reflecting an attempt by farmers to catch up to the "average" family. The article reports that since last June, beef has jumped by 21 per cent, pork by 22 per cent and poultry by 26 per cent. But it gives no reason - just or unjust for the jump.
The picture may not be all that gloomy if the record turns out figures on income similar to those for 1971.
Statistics Canada reported last week that the average family income rose 16 per cent between 1969 and 1971.
Rising prices (including food) in that period ate up about seven per cent. That leaves an extra nine per cent for improving the family's standard of living.
Perhaps today's food increases are not as much out of line as some seem to think.

$20,000 HOUSEWIFE
Montreal economist Dian Cohen figures Canadian housewives work an average 99.6-hour week putting them into the $20,000-a-year bracket.
In these days of rampant women's lib it's comforting for women to know their worth - even if they aren't paid!
Using a U.S. study, but current Canadian wage rates, Mr. Cohen calculates the basic weekly housewife's income at $204.25 for such diverse services as nursemaid, dietitian, food buyer, cook, dishwasher, housekeeper, etc.
Add to this such intangibles as sexual activities, executive talent juggling a dozen jobs simultaneously, community involvement, entertaining her husband's business pals -- and her salary soars into the $20,000 sphere.
Housewives' labours have not yet been dignified by Statistics Canada. Nobody bothers to measure it or add it into our gross national product.
But stay-at-home women, waging the unceasing battle on the family front, are getting definitely defensive when asked -- "do you work?"
Darn right she works!
Next beleaguered housewife asked this fatuous question should take a deep breath and hit back with this:
"I'm a short order cook, same-day-laundry, purchasing agent, child care worker, continuous cleaning service, maintenance and home management centre, 24-hour counselling centre, child bearer, gardener, chauffeur, gourmet cook -- and cost accountant!"

RECYCLING
What do you do with all your empty glass bottles and jars? Take them to the dump, stock pile them in your basement or take them to a recycling establishment.
One Jarvis resident suggested to the Record that if no nearby community is running such a program, perhaps a local organization could collect glass for recycling as a money making project. It's something to think about.

THERE WAS SOME ONE TO-DAY
There was someone to-day, Who may have spoken the wisest word. But because of my careless way, A word of wisdom, I never heard.
There was someone to-day, Who expected consideration from me. But because of my thoughtless way, The reward of concern will never be.
There was someone to-day, Who saw the things I do so wrong, And because of my determined way, My faults will be remembered long.
There was someone to-day, Who I hope saw some good in me. So I may face another day, With courage to improve, and better me.

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

Wise, Unwise And Otherwise

Perhaps some historian in the future will describe this age as one in which self discipline was either forgotten or largely disregarded. It is not exactly a pleasant thing to talk about but it is a very necessary element in any well ordered society.
What do we find as we look around? Starting with the children we find that there are some households where there is not only lack of self discipline, there is lack of any discipline. The children seem to do just as they please and to have whatever they want, if finances permit. Under such circumstances it is no wonder that the children in such households lack self discipline. They are never told about it.
I am not arguing for a puritanical way of life where joy and pleasure are regarded as sinful, but for a little restraint on the members of the family who are still growing up. People in all ages and in all parts of the world have looked to the older members of society to give guidance and advice, based on their experiences over the years. "The Wisdom of the Ages" is no idle phrase. We have a right and duty to consult folks older than ourselves. In family life, this will naturally be the parents and they should show their wisdom by trying to teach their little ones to develop self discipline. It is good for a child to see something he would like in a store, but to know that he cannot have it (for whatever reason) and to reconcile himself to doing without it.
This lack of self discipline has been going on, and increasing, and now we have an obvious lack of self discipline among adults. We have heard for generations of the man who drinks nearly all his wages away while his wife and family starve. There are others that could be given as examples, but let us take this one: - Family quarrels, disputes between husband and wife and so on. These are often due to the absence of any real self-discipline. Selfishness is the rule of life for such people.
In a country that is ruled by a dictator, self discipline does not matter so much. The agents of the dictator are only too happy to do your thinking for you, but a democracy is made up of people who use self discipline -- the idea of what is best for all, no matter how it affects me.

Counter Clockwise

July 30, 1890
It is rumored that a wealthy young gentleman from the States is about to take away the belle of Garnet. We hope such is not the case, she will be greatly missed from the choir.
Aug. 13, 1890
E. Rodgers of Jarvis received the contract of building the new school-house. It is understood the contract price is in the neighbourhood of $1,750.

A FORGOTTEN MURDER RECALLED
In December of the year 1884, residents of this County will remember that the decomposed remains of a young woman were found in the cedar swamp in the Township of Townsend. The affair attracted some attention at the time, as it was made very clear that the unfortunate girl had been murdered.
Her name it was ascertained was Maria Colville and her home had been in Caledonia. The government offered a liberal reward for the conviction of her slayer, but no arrest was made, though there was a good deal of idle talk floating around implicating one Cardinal Smith a notorious character, who had been keeping a disreputable resort in the vicinity of Jarvis, with some complicity in the crime.
The excitement however soon died out and poor Maria Colville was apparently left unavenged and forgotten.
However, Lemuel Kitchen a farmer who lives near where her remains were found had seen shortly before their discovery Smith and the young woman driving through the swamp and he at least was certain that Smith knew more than he cared to tell.
From that time until the present he has not ceased his vigilance. Gathering up a thread of evidence here and another there he now claims to have woven a coil of testimony around Smith that will lead to his conviction. What he may know of course is not yet public property but he has at least satisfied Magistrate Kitchen who issued a warrant on Thursday last.
