Congratulations to Mr. Lea Marshall who celebrated his 86th birthday on Tuesday

June 5. Mr. Marshall has been the backbone of this community for many years and for many years previous to his coming to Jarvis he was the backbone of the countryside with his Creamery at Black Creek. During depression days, many were the Cream Cheques insured before time and when Walpole clay made the roads almost impossible, many a cream trucker was invited to the Marshall home for his noon meal when unable to get home until late in the day. The Marshall family had dinner at the Explorer's Inn on Tuesday for their father's birthday.

Jarvis Bible Society Holds Annual Meeting

by Jessie Miller
Mrs. Leslie Fess, President of Jarvis Branch of the Canadian Bible Society, presided at the annual meeting on Sunday evening in St. Paul's Church. The Secretary - Treasurer Mrs. Muriel Buckley read the minutes and presented the financial statement as of June 1, 1973. From the area for 1972 - $158.08 and for 1973 - $51.69.

The Rev. Howard Zurbrigg, Secretary for the Hamilton area, presided for the election of officers. They are as follows: Past President, Mrs. Leslie Fess; President, Mrs. Emerson Phillips; Vice-President, Mrs. Louis

Bill. Two representatives from each church are to be named in their own congregations.

Mr. Zurbrigg mentioned the Bible Society walk held in St. Catharines. This was the 4th walkathon held by the society in that city. 509 persons took part and the sum of $14,299.57 was realized. Rest stations were established in all churches along the route. The Canadian Bible Society made the 4th largest contribution in the world last year. Hamilton District topped Canadian contributions.

He stated that with so many illiterate persons in the world the transistor radio was one of the doors through which the scripture could be made available and advised the buying of time on radio stations as a valuable asset.

He also gave credit to the common Bible now being printed for use by the uneducated. There are 1,500 translations in print. In Canada there are Indian and now Eskimo translations of the four Gospels. Canadians have an obligation to the illiterate peoples of the world. A Bible van was purchased for use in Asia last year. Iran has opened its doors. Young men are given a choice - three years in the army or three years in a Literacy Course.

The Jesus History has an opportunity. The Christian church finds a closed door in Libya, Algeria and little opportunity in China. Gospels are available for as little as 4¢ - or for free in extreme cases.

Being Moderator For Hamilton Presbytery

When asked about the 'honour' of being elected Moderator of this Presbytery of 40 congregations, Rev. G. Taylor-Munro hastened to explain that the position was just that, an honour, in its temporarily heightened responsibilities for a term of 12 months.

Otherwise, the regular pastoral business of the local parish must be continued, if anything with a new interest, comparing local conditions with those in the other parishes.

However, there are signs that the heightened responsibilities go somewhat higher than you might expect.

May 2 at St. John's Church, Hamilton, the moderator conducted a special service for the licensing-to-preach of a young man who is a member of that church, Mr. Edward S. Dowdles.

May 8 at Strathcona Church, Burlington: the moderator presided at a full-scale meeting of the Presbytery.

May 12: called back to assist at funeral of a dear friend on Pelham-Louth parish.

May 23: made appointment to meet with Mrs. Taylor - Munro (afternoon) at Rockway and make courtesy visit to 45th anniversary of two friends, continued on to St. John's Church, Hamilton to conduct service of ordination for Mr. Edward S. Dowdles.

Bicycles Are Not Toys

Many Jarvis, Hagersville and area bicycle riders are breaking the law today as they return home from school, rush out to perform errands or just ride about town on their two wheelers.

Both the child and his parents are guilty of ignorance and apathy concerning the laws of the road for these special drivers. A bicycle is a vehicle in the eyes of the law, and its rider, is therefore the driver of a vehicle.

Too many parents consider bikes a simple toy which will keep children occupied and happy for hours on end. This lack of concern could be fatal.

There is more to bicycle safety than knowing the arm signs for turning and buying a licence to place conspicuously on a new "Spyder 1" or "3 speed roadster."

Is it your child who races down the street in the opposite direction of a one way sign? Or, is it your child who glides down the pedestrian sidewalks performing "wheelies" for friends? How many times have you been confronted by a bicycle rider wobbling precariously into the path of your car?

Someday a driver will not be able to stop quick enough when coming upon a child who is riding too abreast or travelling too slowly to move smoothly with the traffic flow.

A bicycle is a vehicle under the Highway Traffic Act. As the operator of a vehicle, the rider is subject to that act. You must ride with the traffic, stop at stop signs and go the right way on one way streets.

Section 98 (5) of the Highway Traffic Act which provides where a person on a bicycle on a highway is overtaken by a vehicle travelling at a greater speed, the person so overtaken shall turn out to the right.

Under Section 122 of the Highway Traffic Act (1) a person riding upon a bicycle coaster, roller skates, skis, toboggan, sled or a toy bicycle shall not attach it, or them, or himself, to a vehicle or street car on a roadway;

(2) no person riding on a bicycle designed for carrying one person shall attach himself to the outside of a vehicle for the purpose of being drawn along a roadway.

Since bicycles fall within the definition of "vehicles" riders must pedal on the right side of the road.

Children should learn how to ride a bike properly BEFORE they cause an accident.... AFTER is too late.

Here I sit at my window,
Looking at the world out there.
It is so radically changing.
Does no one even care?

Tall apartment buildings rise,
On the former public park
Now there is no place at all
For the happy singing lark!

What used to be the green grass
Is now a garbage dump
Is the beautiful fertile earth
Turning into an ugly lump?

We hear of many problems,
The stifling pollution
I truly wish there were
Some kind of solution!

They often say that this
Was such a lovely city.
It is not now though,
Isn't that a pity?

Maybe in future times,
These things will somewhat change.
For those of us here,
A change would be strange.

Cheryl Norman

Waiting for some long expected find,
If we will, can help us learn true appreciation.
Which has a way of soothing an anxious mind,
Leading us to better see, life's true determination.

To wait in patience, is waiting won,
Because time can be measured in value found.
Only in life's patient time, is real living done,
And share the glory, of its rewarding bound.

To wait for something without value gained,
Is to lose in times true treasured way.
Thus all things must be soundly and honestly weighed,
So life can be fully lived, each passing day.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Bill Knowles MP (Haldimand-Norfolk) voted against extending the partial ban on hanging in the House of Commons last Tuesday night. The 2nd reading - approval in principal of the bill to extend the partial ban on hanging for a further five years - received a Commons decision of 138-114 - in favour of the ban.

NEW O.P.P. HOME

The Cayuga O.P.P. detachment moved from their Munsee Street headquarters to their new $55,000 office on Talbot Street last Thursday. The new building is located on the south side of Talbot St. (Hwy. 3) about 1,200 feet east of the Cayuga arena.

It houses a general office, an interrogation room, a waiting room and two cells.

WINDOW SHOPPING

If you're a window shopper, take a peek in the window of the Record office sometime when you're walking by. It won't cost you a cent because we aren't selling anything.

A large display of community events photos featured in the paper are decorating one of our windows. Your picture may be one of them.

Since some of our good pictures have been coming out quite dark in the paper, you may wish to see who actually was in them.

LAND FREEZE

A. N. Dunn, appointed director of the Haldimand-Norfolk Study when Nigel Richardson left to take on the Metro Toronto Regional study, said in Jarvis last Thursday night "it is the province's intention to remove orders (land freeze) at the earliest possible date."

STUDY LEAK?

At Thursday's meeting in the Jarvis Community Centre, a newsman from CFRS radio said he was told 8,000 acres in the Lynn (Woodhouse New Town) area had been sought by a Toronto real estate firm during the last couple of days. He asked Arthur Meem, parliamentary assistant to the treasurer, if the province knew anything about this. Mr. Meem was not aware of any land buying.

However, the fact that somebody was trying to option land in the right area just prior to study release does pose the question - WAS THERE A GOVERNMENT LEAK?

SOME GAME!

Some Jarvis children and teenagers have discovered a new game (?) involving pop cans, barbecue lighter and a ball.

This game is NO GAME and can be extremely dangerous. We hope parents will put a stop to this type of "fun" before someone is seriously injured.

EMPLOYMENT

According to the Haldimand-Norfolk Study, the proportion of self-employed and unpaid family workers is insignificant in the steel industry, but high in the agricultural force (73 per cent).

Steelworkers spend far more time employed than do the other two groups: over 86 per cent of steel workers reported 40-52 weeks of employment, and over 84 per cent reported at least 35 hours of work per week. The corresponding proportions for construction workers are 60 per cent and approximately 58 per cent, and for agricultural workers less than 49 per cent and less than 45 per cent. Thus, steelworkers in the main have a steadier and lengthier working pattern than the other two groups, except during strike periods.

UNSAFE PLAY AREA

A decaying building located on Highway 3 in Jarvis (beside Werner Trailer Sales and behind Bill Henderson's trucks) is a dangerous play area for local children, one reader informed the Record this week.

Parents should caution their children to stay away from this building which is falling in and perhaps request a fence put up to keep those who don't listen out.

INSTINCT

The ants are trying to make a highway across my kitchen counter. At least that is what it looks like, every time I go near it I see one or more travelling across it, or climbing the vertical wall at the back. I wonder how they manage to overcome the law of gravity.

We all know that the ants are a highly organized group of beings, some people say they have seen them marching along in single file, like an army. So it seems possible that the ants in my kitchen are scouts looking over the land with a view to further development. Of course, I do not really think that they can reason, or think or plan; what they do is solely by instinct.

However, that does not help very much because the next question is: "What is Instinct?" The Oxford Dictionary has this: "An innate propensity in organized beings, especially in the lower animals . . . manifesting itself in acts which appear to be rational but performed without conscious adaptations of means to ends. Also, the faculty supposed to be involved in this operation." For ordinary folk the general idea is that we say that things are done by instinct that we are pretty sure are not the result of reason or thought. From one point of view, reason and instinct are opposites, from another, they seem to merge. Especially is this true of pets such as cats, dogs and horses.

I am particularly interested in the word "faculty" -- does this mean a kind of organ? So far nobody has found such a thing in humans or in non-humans, yet we humans certainly have both instinct and reason. Where or in what area of the brain do we find anything even approaching an organ of either reason or instinct?

The ant is a tiny creature, an elephant is a huge animal, yet that does not mean that the elephant has that much more instinct than the ant. The brain of the ant (if we can call it that) is infinitely small but it has an instinct which serves it just as well as the instinct of the huge elephant -- and nobody knows what instinct really is.

It is such considerations as this which show how silly are these people who deny the existence of a personal Creator - God.
