the sale is distributed to producers. Appoint agents, prescribe their duties and terms and conditions of employment and provide for their remuneration. Russ Rogers of Essex County, vice-chairman of the Wheat Board, told approximately 40 farmers at the Rural Agricultural Centre the reason the amendments were proposed is because there is a dollar to be made in the export market. World wheat prices have soared to new levels, but current prices in Ontario do not reflect the higher world prices. Mr. Rogers explained that May statistics showed a $1.04 difference between the export and domestic wheat market price. "$1.04 is what the dealer can make . . . That money is ours," he said. 50 per cent of the wheat crop is exported and 50 per cent is for domestic consumption. Taking this into consid-

Also at council: Village fathers approved a by-law raising the speed limit on Highway 6 at the southern limits of the village 1200 feet in towards the village from 30 m.p.h. to 45 m.p.h. The by-law must now be approved by the Department of Transportation and Communication. Reeve Austin said this move has its advantages and disadvantages. One positive factor is that vehicles must now stop for school buses, whereas in a 30 m.p.h. zone drivers do not have to.

Council received a letter from Wondersteel, the company which is going to build the village storage garage, saying they are ready to start construction and they would like $2,000 down. Council decided the company must have their material at the site before they receive the $2,000. Council accepted in principal the draft proposal of the village's peacetime emergency plan.

Woodhouse City School Fire Site

Continued From Page 1 of environmental and ecological factors. It does not interfere with any other development in the region . . . and it will help the development of adjacent communities."

The key points in professor Pearson's site selection analysis are summarized as follows:

- * Avoiding areas of bedrock outcrop or undue overburden.
- * Steering away from areas with massive incidence of gas wells.
- * Avoiding first class farmland and tobacco lands.
- * Keeping away from glacial and gravel resources.
- * Avoiding areas ideal for multiple use resource production such as ideal forest lands, wildlife lands, parklands and conservation areas, ecological reserves, marshes and wetlands.
- * Keeping well away from areas where there is severe frost potential, potential for inversion and areas of very hazardous or unfavourable microclimate, using warmer areas.
- * Steering away from the lakeshore recreational areas and away from desirable greenbelts.
- * Protecting ecologically significant areas and unique landscapes.
- * Minimal fisheries and waterfowl impact. It is possible.
- * In short, the site selected is the only one in the region large enough to allow for the major development of a new city without impacting environmental and ecological constraints."

- * Positive factors for determining the Walpole-Townsend site include:
- * Ideal relationship to serve and support existing towns.
- * Ideal relationship to surrounding food supply, recreational and industrial areas, and well within easy commuting distance of jobs.
- * Excellent location in relation to transport,

- * regional services and utilities.
- * "In summary, the "push" of those forces which drive the location inland away from environmental hazards, urban sprawl, adverse ecological impact, and undesirable land use conflicts, and the pull of those forces such as transport junctions and industrial and power and water sites are in balance at the site selected.
- * On the site, the developers will build:
 - * A new city serving the whole surrounding region.
 - * Innovative housing using new techniques on a large site.
 - * A protective working greenbelt to prevent urban sprawl.
 - * An innovative transport system; in plain words, a city not totally dependent on the car.
 - * A pollution free city, using modern technologies and respect for the environment.
 - * Advanced systems of waste disposal and secondary materials.
 - * A test-bed for new kinds of urban technology.
- * According to the consortium, this could be "an opportunity to bring together the power of government and the creativity of private enterprise to produce the best solution for the needs of the area."
- * And "to meet the urgent problem of the cost, and availability of housing, the consortium is ready to cooperate with government in maintaining controls on housing costs, and building at the rate needed to meet the urgent demands posed by imminent industrial expansion."

- * Cam Thomson of Naticoke was also at the scene with a water truck in case his assistance was needed.
- * In addition to the fire, a back door was smashed out, several windows were broken, and the office of principal Norman Walpole, the supply room and 4-5 classrooms received damage. Desks were overturned, furniture broken, papers scattered and a showcase window shattered.
- * Constable J.C. Hanes, investigating officer with the Cayuga O.P.P.,

- * told the Record any motive was not known, but there did not appear to be anything stolen . . . just willful damage. Mr. Hanes found a splintered baseball bat on the roof, which may have been one of the tools used as a window breaker at the school. The bat "appeared to be thrown there," Mr. Hanes said. Police are continuing to investigate.

out the school because the solid fire doors at the entrance of the auditorium were shut. However, most of the school did suffer from smoke damage.

It snuffed itself out to a certain extent, Mr. Nasby told the Record.

Howard Elliott, deputy fire chief of the Jarvis fire department said the fire was just smouldering when the 15 firemen arrived. It took 15-20 minutes to put it out completely. And, the Ontario Fire Marshall's office was called to investigate.

Cam Thomson of Naticoke was also at the scene with a water truck in case his assistance was needed.

In addition to the fire, a back door was smashed out, several windows were broken, and the office of principal Norman Walpole, the supply room and 4-5 classrooms received damage. Desks were overturned, furniture broken, papers scattered and a showcase window shattered.
