

Friends 'N Neighbors

by Jessie Miller
Mrs. Kenneth Church and Mrs. Earl Marr have returned home from spending a week with their son and daughter in their new home at Lake Breeze Lodge on Cameron Lake at Fenelon Falls.

The home vacated south of Jarvis by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Church is occupied by four employees of the Hydro Company at Nanticoke.

Mrs. Kenneth Parkinson, who has been in West Haldimand Hospital for some time returned to her new home on Peel Street on Saturday. Her daughter, Janice of Kingston came up for a week, taking her mother home and helping her get settled. The writer of this column got home on Saturday afternoon also, after five weeks in West Haldimand Hospital which is a good place to be when you are sick and tired and unable to look after yourself.

Kenneth Mulkins exhibited his Gurnsey Dairy Cattle at Caledonia Fair where he received prizes for Grand Champion Bull, and reserve Grand Champion female.

Andrew Doughty of R. R. 3 Jarvis won 2nd prize Light Draught Clydesdale Team.

Flowers in Knox sanctuary, Jarvis, Oct. 14 were in memory of Mary Dosser, placed as a loving memorial by the family.

On Tuesday, October 9th, after 10 days of being company and practical nurse for her invalid cousin, Ann Jensen, Mrs. M. Musclove was brought back to the manse. Enroute from their home in Dundas, Harry and Mildred Shannick stopped at Mt. Hope and treated their friend and stand-by RNA to a Chinese supper (this happens to be Mrs. Musclove's favorite meal).

Travel seems to be a popular therapy for Senior Citizens these days. Mrs. Musclove was home one night and after some flurried phone calls Wednesday evening, her daughter Marie Taylor-Munro drove Mrs. Musclove to Beachville where her cousin Elsie Rivers and Mr. Rivers and friends were waiting to drive up to visit another cousin, Lou Roulston and her husband Fred, for a few weeks in Powasson.

On Thursday, October 11 Granville Taylor-Munro kept a supper date with youngest daughter Debbie as a break from arduous study preparation for government exams for a degree registering for a medical technologist, which are scheduled Oct. 17 and 18. Following supper, Dad took Deb to see the contemporary spectacular, Jesus Christ Superstar. Returning Deb to the residence she is sharing with two other candidates for their R.T. degree, Taylor-Munro found himself the target for a friendly 'Attack' by his three lovely hostesses in a lively discussion about the impact and content of Super Star.

Congratulations to the local Scout Group Committee on acquiring the welcome leadership of Morris Payne, employee at Nanticoke Generating Station for Cubs commencing at registration on Oct. 17 and of our own local young man, Roy Hagan, as Scout leader commencing at registration Oct. 15. Let's give enthusiastic support to those leaders.

Mrs. Singleton of Mary Street, President of Group Committee reassures the parents of all little girls that those faithful and hard-working leaders, Bertha Church and Donald Reu are still going to continue Akela and Tawny Owl duties for the Brownies at Knox Church, Monday nights from 7 to 8:30.

To those young men and women who might like to consider this splendid field of service, all you need to get started in the group of your choice is to be at least 18 years of age and with lots of enthusiasm. The learning and coaching come with the experience, augmented with periodical workshops.

Editorial Comment

REPORT CARELESS HUNTERS

The '73-'74 hunting season in Haldimand County has barely begun and already we are being plagued with careless hunting practices.

In a recent news release, the Cayuga detachment of the O.P.P. reports that they are receiving complaints of trespassing and erratic shooting. And, they have found that the majority of complaints concern hunters from areas outside of our county.

These "sportsmen" who are abusing their privilege of hunting in our municipalities should be caught and punished for our own safety and as a warning to other hunters.

Trespassing is illegal. Permission must be obtained from the owner or tenant by any hunter before entry is made onto private property. If not, charges can be laid.

Erratic and dangerous hunting practices should not be condoned either. It has in the past or could in the future - cost the life of an innocent farm animal or human being.

Careless hunters should be reported to the police or local branches of the ministry of natural resources.

And, when these people are caught, a record of their names should be kept and sent to the municipal (regional) offices for next year when hunting licences are handed out.

We don't want these careless individuals shooting in our county again.

Geography As A

Core Subject

by Derek Bishop

The Credit System has produced many changes from the time we attended high school as students. It is also significant that many subjects or courses have also changed in their content and emphasis. Gone are the days when geography was a study of "Capes and Bays," instead the emphasis has been placed upon the development of skills, skills that we consider to be essential in our sophisticated and highly complex society.

Present methods of teaching geography emphasize "posing questions, gathering data, separating the important from the unimportant, organizing significant information in an orderly way, thinking clearly, critically and precisely, reaching conclusions that are as valid and objective as possible, and communicating thoughts in oral and written form."

Indeed most of these essential skills are common to virtually all school subjects, but geography is in an unique position in that it can (by methods of DISCOVER teaching) achieve both the acquisition of these skills and promote a greater knowledge and understanding of the human and physical world in which we live.

The uniqueness of Geography among the subjects offered at school is especially true if we examine the need for a compulsory course in Canadian Geography. A study of the geography of Canada will broaden the knowledge of our students and make them aware of the potentials and problems that will confront them in future years. No longer can we live in isolation from neighbouring areas within our country, for now we must be a part of the nation, or else others will make decisions for us that leave us with no choice. It is this abdication of responsibilities through ignorance that a study of Canadian geography can help to overcome or avoid.

A course in the geography of Canada involves a study of people's needs, values, and cultures, together with the physical constraints that restrict movement, settlement and development of parts of this country. It is a combination of these factors that create the problems that confront Canada today - problems of economic disparity, regional development, economic nationalism, resource development, and rural-urban migration. Solutions proposed by planners, community leaders and politicians to these problems will involve us all, and it is only through an understanding and knowledge of the magnitude and importance of these problems that we will be able to evaluate and decide upon the wisdom of selected proposals.

Our futures are so bound up in the destiny of Canada that we have a high stake in its future. We therefore as parents and teachers have a moral obligation to prepare our students to face the realities, problems and potentials of this "Our Canada."

Beef producers are reminded of a meeting to be held at Kohler on Monday, October 22, starting at 8:15 p.m. Subjects to be considered will include control of the warble fly and grubs, shipping fever and I.B.R. President, Bob Thompson of Caledonia, invites all who are interested in beef production to be in attendance.

Home Economist, Beverley Carson, advises that application forms are still being accepted from any ladies' groups interested in the course "More Ideas For Sewing Knits" to be held October 29 and 30, 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. at Haldimand Agricultural Centre, Kohler.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Parents,

BOYS GROW BEST WHEN . . .

1. They are with adults who are at ease with them and who seem to enjoy them most of the time. . . .

2. They are permitted to make mistakes which will not harm them unduly, and are permitted to live with adults who do not themselves pretend to be perfect. . . .

3. Those about them believe in them and express confidence through words and through giving them freedom. . . .

4. Those about them understand what they are trying to achieve and support and team with them in their endeavours. . . .

5. Those about them permit them to express doubts, to raise questions, to try their own ideas. . . .

6. They understand the limits of the freedom within which they can make decisions, and when this freedom is limited to the responsibility they feel able to carry at their stage of development. . . .

7. Those about them deal with them with firmness and consistency. . . .

8. Adults around them behave as adults and show what the adult way is like. . . .

9. Those about them help them to succeed when they need help, but let them struggle when they are winning by themselves. . . .

10. Those about them gear their expectancy of a child's behaviour to his capacity for that behaviour. . . .

11. Those about them understand how they grow and develop, and provide motivation and opportunity for encouraging sound growth. . . .

12. They feel strong within themselves, when they feel they are just the kind of person wanted by their family, their friends, their community and nation. . . .

13. There is an atmosphere of friendliness and warmth whether with adults or children. . . .

14. They meet actual life situations, emotionally charged, and deal with them successfully whether with or without adult help. . . .

15. Their performance expectancy is related to themselves and not to others. . . .

16. They are interested in what they are doing for its own sake. They will be interested when it has meaning for them. Children forced to perform at tasks in which they have no interest or understanding are not helped but are actually blocked. Those who attempt it are battling against human nature and will lose in the end. . . .
