IN MEMORIAM
John Albert Veldhuis
On Monday evening, August 27th, 1973, John Albert Veldhuis quietly succumbed to cancer in St. Joseph's Hospital, at the age of thirty-four.

A beloved husband and father, dedicated teacher and cherished friend, Albert will be missed by all who knew him. Mild and soft-spoken, he daily demonstrated an understanding and warmth for his fellow man that was genuine and whole-hearted.

It was in the order of things, with his selfless nature, that Albert should enter the teaching profession, where he could touch so many young lives. Like every excellent teacher, he used his subject material, mathematics, as the vehicle to get to know his pupils as individuals, and in many cases to help them in troubled times. Whether after class, or in the guidance office, or occasionally at his home, students sought him out to share their problems and to listen to his wise counsel. Hundreds will recall his empathy and compassion, and the honest wisdom of his advice.

Those of us who knew Albert more intimately feel honored and richer for having shared part of his life. Every meeting with him revealed the zest that he had for life and for all God's gifts: a wife to treasure, three precious children, a comfortable home, nature and wild-life in all forms, and not least - his fellow man, all of whom he treated as brothers. Albert had the ability to display this zest and to pass it on to others.

Above all, Albert Veldhuis was a practicing Christian Gentleman who loved God with all his heart, and loved his neighbour as himself. He knew who he was, and he tried to help others find themselves.

Everything that proclaimed the joy of living interested Albert, from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony to Bach's 'Johanna Livingston Seagull'. If, as Bach says, the most important thing in living is to reach out and touch perfection in that which you most love to do, or to 'seek God, to know Him and His works of love' (Beethoven's Song of Joy), then John Albert Veldhuis truly lived well. Our lives are richer because of him.

The Greatest Teachers leave us all too quickly, but their lessons for us are timeless. "Know yourself, love God, love one another."

Hints For Fall Gardens

With summer drawing to a close, many gardeners are starting autumn preparations in their gardens. As well as readying plants for fall blooms, they should start to think about next season, recommends R. F. Gomme, of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food. Mr. Gomme, a horticultural specialist, provides these hints for autumn gardens.

It will soon be time for fall planting, so prepare the soil now for perennial flowers, shrubs, trees, evergreens and roses. Keep your overall garden scheme in mind when you choose these plants. Tall plants and trees should not be placed where they will block out other flowers and plants.

Your lawn can be fertilized any time now with a wintercare formula to help the grass over winter. Once the hot summer days are past, it's also a good time to seed a new lawn. Use a seed mixture of basic grasses such as Kentucky bluegrass and creeping red fescue for the best stands.

Many trees have been damaged recently by fireblight and severe apple scab infestations. Withered and fallen leaves around the base of infected trees should be destroyed. The fungicide captan can be used to control apple scab. However, dry sunny weather will usually check both diseases for the remainder of the season.

Now is a good time to select flowers and foliage for attractive winter bouquets. Many types can be air-dried by cutting and hanging them in a dry, well-ventilated room. Others can be dried in fine sand or silica gel.

Take cuttings of geraniums, coleus, and ivy plants now. The slips can be rooted in moist sand and brought indoors in late September.

"This is a remarkable suit of clothes I'm wearing," a man said to his friend. "The wool was grown in Australia, the cloth was made in New England, the suit was tailored in Rochester, and I bought it in Louisville. Isn't it interesting how so many people can make a living out of something I haven't even paid for."
