Boar Killed Near Dover

A Port Dover farmer shot and killed a 120-pound wild boar on his property Friday night.

Tom Field, 34, of R.R. 2, Port Dover spotted the black bristly-haired animal snooping around a closed in barnyard where he keeps sows and two domesticated boar hogs.

He told The Record he tried to shoo the animal away several times. The final time the animal turned and ran towards him as if to attack.

Mr. Field collected his gun from the house and shot it.

He described the boar as being shorter than a domestic hog and said it is capable of moving a lot faster.

Mr. Field, who has a three-year-old daughter, said the wild animal could be dangerous and he expressed fear for her safety and of the boar passing any disease to his domestic animals. Also, it could damage crops and garden vegetables.

He has not seen any more boars in the area, but he's heard there is a larger one running around.

Mr. Field said the Ontario Provincial Police were at his place Saturday hunting for it and experienced hunters were in Monday searching.

Fire Guts Barn

A frame barn on the Haldimand - Norfolk townline was destroyed by fire Saturday night.

And three escaped youths from White Oaks training school, aged ten, eleven and twelve, were named responsible for the gutted remains, a Cayuga O.P.P. spokesman told The Record Tuesday.

The boys were playing with matches in the barn, the spokesman said. They set a small fire which grew beyond their control.

The 80 by 45 foot building was owned by Marc Stephenson of R.R. 5, Hagersville.

It was a "straight case of arson", he told The Record.

His house was entered and a shotgun and rifles also taken. They have since been returned.

Mr. Stephenson said he was away during the afternoon. He didn't notice anything until a neighbour came and told him his barn was on fire. Checking through the

Lot Levies Debated

Lot levies for single family units should not exceed $1,000 in total, City of Nanticoke councillors felt last week. But, they could not make any decisions on what percentage should be split between the region and area municipality.

Public Works Committee member Ken Porteous brought in a recommendation at the meeting in Port Dover that "a capital lot levy of $300 per lot for a single family unit be imposed for subdivision development in the urban areas of the City of Nanticoke to be applied on each registered plan of subdivision and further that the Haldimand - Norfolk Regional levy should not exceed $700".

Nanticoke Gets Western Coal

by Colin Hendry

The Cape Breton Miner delivered coal to the Nanticoke Generating Station last Sunday.

Built to transport coal from ports on the east coast to thermal generating stations in Ontario, she has often taken her loads through the St. Lawrence Seaway. But this trip was different. This time she began her trip at the other end of the line, picking up 21,000 tons of Western coal from the dock at Thunder Bay.

The coal for furnaces at Ontario Hydro's thermal generating stations usually originates in American coalfields.

The 60 hour trip from Thunder Bay to Nanticoke G.S. was the last leg of a 2,000 mile journey from Coal Valley, just inside the British Columbia bor-
