Jarvis' "Passing Out" Ceremony

Come One, Come Allto the Passing Out Ceremony of the Municipal council of the Village of Jarvis.

In eighteen days, the local system of government which has served the village for the past sixty - four years will end and regional government will be implemented.

Next Wednesday (March 29th) the village will be treating all present and former residents to an evening of cards, dancing and reminiscing in the Jarvis Community Hall. Jarvis, first known as Sherman's Corners at the crossroads of the Plank and Talbot Roads, began developing around 1840 and later became a Police Village.

It was not until December 22, 1909 that it was made the incorporated Village of Jarvis by a vote of county council.

The first election of reeve and councillors took place in the Temperance Hall on Monday, December 27th. There were no contests, so all men were unanimously elected.

On January 10, 1910 reeve Robert Smith took the chair for the first meeting in George Miller's office. Charles Allen, Ivan W. Holmes, Dr. Thomas Lewis and Stacey Burwash served as councillors. Officers appointed by the council included Charles Bourne as clerk at $50 per annum, Jas. Noble as Treasurer, Frank Hartwell as assessor and Alfred Underhill was nominated for county constable.

One of the early by-laws, number seven, covered the regulation of public nuisances. It's eight sub-sections included (1) Obscene and immoral writings were forbidden. (2) No begging allowed. (3) No one is allowed to "ring bells, shout, or make any charivari in any street". (4) Cruelty to dumb animals is forbidden. (5) No advertising on sidewalks, posts or poles, no horse or vehicle to remain on the street for more than one hour (6) Telegraph and telephone poles to be set up only with the consent of the reeve. (7) No pulling down or defacing authorized signs. (8) No horses or cattle allowed on the sidewalk.

Reeves and councillors for subsequent years are listed below. 1914 - 1918 Reeve - Ivan Holmes; Council - Coyne Allen, Tom Lewis, Edward Carter, Albert Booth.

Stockpiling Coke

Stelco will begin construction at Nanticoke this spring as soon as they can get on the land "without burying the machinery".

Stelco spokesman Ron Tipler told the Record last Thursday the company is still on schedule with their plans and will start when it's as dry as possible.

In the meantime, workers are finishing the capping of gas wells, engineers are surveying, coke is being stockpiled and men are leveling out the front part of Stelco's property near the lake.

Approximately 60 to 70 truck loads of coke a day are travelling to the Nanticoke site on a round the clock basis, he said.

Stelco Predicts

3600 Workers By Jan. '76

There will be a "real drastic increase" in the number of Stelco workers at Nanticoke between the end of 1974 and end of 1975.

The 500 estimated for 1974 will jump to 3,600 workers "by the completion of '75 and not later than the beginning of '76", Stelco spokesman Ron Tipler told the Record last Thursday.

Where will we put everyone?

"I don't know the answer," he said. Some will undoubtedly commute. There is some development in the area - Explorer Inn subdivision in Jarvis and subdivisions in Simcoe.

And, he said, the company is considering putting a trailer park on their own property to house construction workers.

However, he continued, unlike Hydro, our project will go on till the year 2,000. So, the average chap is looking at a lifetime of work and will undoubtedly settle somewhere in the area.

Stelco receives letters from developers and the company tries to indicate the kind of money workers will be making so they know the price of home to build, he said. But, "what they're doing about this, I don't know".

This type of question can't really be answered till the new regional government comes up with a master plan saying whether there is going to be a new town or where development is going to be, he explained.

Everything is so up in the air and nobody seems to be making decisions and I can see why, he said. They have to wait for the regional planner to get underway with the official plan. We "don't want helter-skelter growth".
