Hamilton Area 49th W.I. Convention

The Hamilton Area Convention was held Nov. 12th and 13th at Park Motor Hotel, Niagara Falls. More than three hundred delegates registered on the opening day.

Mrs. Lorne Grey, President gave words of welcome to all and challenged us by saying "Let's get out of our rut and help someone else to become interested in doing and learning, and to take advantage of the many opportunities for doing this, and truly make our motto "for Home and Country, very realistic." Mr. Bukator, mayor of Niagara welcomed everyone to the hospitality of Niagara Falls, wished the gathering well and closed his remarks with this quote "No one is happy who lives for himself alone."

A rousing sing song was led by Mrs. J. Windmill, assisted at the piano by Mrs. H. Roland.

Mrs. Wm. Mitchell, Hagersville, presented the resolutions to be discussed and later voted on by the voting delegates.

Mrs. R.C. Walker in her report on the Tweedsmuir Histories, expressed her pleasure that more histories were being made, and urged every institute to keep them up to date, and also that each member, should keep a house log to be left in the house, when a family moves. Especially, since this is needed in areas, where new developments are springing up, such as the Haldimand-Norfolk region.

On tables, several displays were set up, one of various handicrafts one of 4-H and S. Projects, one of ACWW literature available, and last but not least, three quilts which had been entered from the area for judging. They were all excellent, but the one called Crossed Canoes beautifully made in colors of red, white, and blue, by Welland East, district won top honours. The two others exhibited were "Tumbling Flowers" made by Brant District, and "The Maple Leaf" by Springvale Branch, Haldimand West District.

During the afternoon session, Miss H. McKeercher, Dir. of Home Economics Branch, gave a splendid address, in which she urged all to work together, to stimulate and inspire others. The Institutes must strive to keep alive the original purpose to bring people together. They must work for Peace and Education, by sharing ideas have objective issues, keep the early Canadian Crafts alive, and thus function more effectively as parents and citizens. Miss McKeercher presented slides of the Erland Lee Home, the present project of the FWIO on the restoration of the first Institute home in Stoney Creek.

Hagersville S.S. News

by Deborah Schweyer
The students of Hagersville Secondary School took home their first report of the year Thursday, November 6. This year the formal examinations in January and June have been brought back, however, in June a student with 66 per cent in each subject can be exempted from writing exams. Last year the exams were replaced by frequent evaluation cycles. Due to the unpopularity the evaluation cycles were replaced.

Saturday, November 29, the annual Commencement Night will take place. The program will begin at 8.15 p.m. This night will provide an opportunity to meet with some of the graduates and friends of HSS.

Congratulations are in order to the Hagersville Hurricanes, Friday, November 7, the Hurricanes, coached by Mr. Bassindale, went on to defeat Caledonia in a well played game 35:0 in Caledonia. The team was cheered on to victory by a group of fans who watched the entire game in the pouring rain. This victory moved Hagersville into second place.

Monday, Nov. 10 the Staff and Students of HSS gathered in the gym for an Assembly to remember those who lost their lives in the World Wars. The HSS Band added to the Assembly by playing a couple of selections.

The week of Nov. 24 to 28 marks "Fall Fair Week" at HSS. Several activities will take place through the week, finishing up with a dance featuring "White Frost" on Friday night. We hope to see several students attending this dance.

Report from Queen's Park

By Gordon Miller, (Haldimand-Norfolk) M.P.P.

In order to keep you updated on the events of the government, I plan to write a column each week for this newspaper. If you have any suggestions or questions, please do not hesitate to call or write me at Queen's Park. My phone number is at the end of this column.

Following the wind storm of November 10 along the eastern end of Lake Erie, I made a personal survey of the area and talked to many residents. I have been in touch with the Minister of Natural Resources, Leo Bernier, as well as, assessing the extent of the damages with the Regional Area Councils of Haldimand-Norfolk. A matter of this kind takes time to sort out, but hopefully we may have some answers before this letter goes to the press.

Rent Control

The Provincial Government has introduced legislation placing an 8 per cent ceiling on rent increases for at least a year from last July 29, and there will be automatic refunds for increases beyond 8 per cent since that date. There is no provision for appeal by landlords or tenants.

ants until January 1, after which appeals may be made to rent review officers throughout the province, or ultimately a single rent review board. The 8 per cent limit will hold - subject to appeal - for leases signed up to August 1, 1976. Subsequently signed leases will be subject to some control figure to be set by Cabinet in accordance with landlords' current costs and based partly on figures allowed by rent officers and the appeal board. These controls will not apply to rooming houses, buildings in which four or fewer units are rented, luxury accommodation (rented at more than $500 per month) non-profit housing, and new buildings not occupied before January 1. Legislation has also been introduced requiring termination of leases, which will provide some degree of security of tenure for tenants.

Education

In spite of considerable pressure from the Opposition Members, the Minister of Education has refused to intervene, and some 99 per cent of Metro's 8,600 high school teachers are on strike. Picket signs indicate that the teachers are calling for smaller classes and more teachers for immigrant students, but the main demand is for increased salaries, in accordance with the recommendations of the Provincial Fact Finder Stanley Hart, who recommended teacher salaries ranging from $13,356 to $25,224 a year, while the Metro Board has offered a range of $11,575 to $24,820. Current salaries range from $7,800 to $18,400.

Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough, appearing as a witness before the 12-member 3-Party Select Committee investigating Hydro's proposed 25 per cent increase in bulk power rates, has defended Hydro's requested increase. He maintains that Hydro's credit rating could suffer if a small increase is recommended by the Committee. The Province has limited Hydro's borrowing for next year to $1.7 billion, $200 million lower than requested (the utility borrows all money through the Province, which guarantees the loans.) Jim Bullbrook (Liberal M.P.P. for Sarnia) has expressed the view that the Committee is likely to recommend and interim increase of 12-15 per cent as an alternative to Hydro's present plan of instituting a full 25 per cent increase as of January 1, making rebates if the Committee and the Government decide a smaller increase is required.

Workmen's Compensation

A Committee will soon be appointed to be responsible for solving problems in connection with the Workmen's compensation Board. The Minister of Labour announced the Committee will be similar to the Advisory Council on Occupational and Environmental Health recently announced by the Health Minister, but will deal with occupational health and safety "after the fact" of injury. Seven members will be appointed initially, and they will appoint five others, from big and small business unions and other interested groups. The Committee will arrange an exchange of information between groups representing disabled workers and the Board.

Transfer Payments

Treasurer Darcy McKeough called a special meeting in Toronto of the provincial-municipal liaison committee to announce the government has imposed a 5-6 per cent limit on transfer payments to local governments and school boards next year. These payments, which will amount to about $2.8 billion this year, represent more than half the total revenues of the province's local governments and school boards, as well as conservation authorities, children's aid societies homes for the aged and library boards. Municipal leaders have accused the government of lack of leadership in refusing to create a provincial anti-inflation board.

Bell Canada finally installed our phones at Queen's Park this week. My number is (416) 965-0393 and on urgent matter please call collect at that number. See you next week.

Freeze Games?

The 6-cent-a-gallon increase on gasoline brings forth questions as to whom a government-imposed price freeze is initially intended to help? (Although some media outlets have quoted gasoline retail executives that the increase is 5.4 cents a gallon, 6-cents a gallon is found to be the increase charged at most gas stations)

As soon as the Ontario government 4 1/2 month freeze on gasoline prices ended November 16, increases were immediately imposed. It would seem that major corporations are playing a game of cat and mouse with the government - but the consumer is the mouse. Once again, those who can least afford it, are paying the price in this expensive game.

Perhaps the only way to beat it is for drivers who use their cars for convenience and pleasure driving to stop using their cars until the prices become stable.

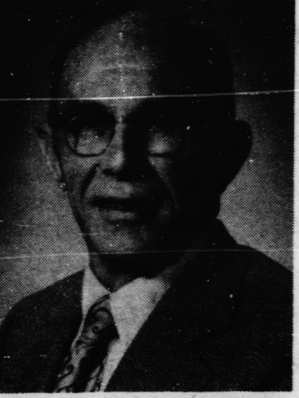

This type of stoppage could well account for about 25 per cent of our drivers. While 25 per cent is only one quarter of the vehicles, it could have a tremendous impact in buying power.

However, the drivers who use their cars as a necessary part of their work routines may have to ask for wage increases to meet their required budgetary needs.

And so the cycle continues . . .

News from Knowles The Anti-Inflation Program

could respond to Gillespie's letter, John Turner resigned, and Gerald Boney, the Governor of the Bank of Canada, submitted his resignation.

The announcement on October 13th by the Prime Minister stating that Canada would have an Incomes Policy, confirmed rumours that have been bouncing off the walls in Ottawa since September 1974.

Some people were surprised that Pierre Trudeau would adopt Wage and Price Controls so soon after that last election. Many recall the TV commercials during the last Federal election featuring Trudeau screaming to a crowd "Stanfield wants to freeze your wages."

Those of us who keep a close eye on the economy, realized that, unless some action was taken to contain inflation, controls of some kind would be required.

Why did the Prime Minister choose this time to introduce controls? He could have done it last June or next January. Well-founded stories have circulated that Alastair Gillespie, the Minister of Industry, Trade & Commerce had submitted his resignation to the Prime Minister because it was strongly rumored that he was to be dropped from the Cabinet. Before the Prime Minister Canada that caused the shock waves. Since Pierre Trudeau became leader to the Liberal Party and Prime Minister, the money supply has increased one hundred and eleven percent. Last year alone the money supply increased fifteen percent. With successive deficit budgets being covered by an increase in the money supply and a June budget calling for twenty-eight billion dollars in government spending, we were approaching a position of irresponsibility in monetary terms.

Neither John Turner nor Gerald Boney wanted to have that albatross around their necks so they had to get out. The best guess is that Boney agreed to stay on only if an anti-inflation program was introduced. Therefore, the Prime Minister dipped down into the bag and pulled out the program (with a few modifications) recommended by the Prices and Incomes commission, chaired by Dr. John Young. The report of this Commission has never been made public, probably because it had most of the elements of Mr. Stanfield's Wage and Price Control program that was rejected by the electorate in the 1974 election.

So much for background. What chance has the anti-inflation program of success? In discussions with British and American authorities about their experience with controls, we learned that if big and small labour wouldn't support the program it was doomed to failure. British labour wouldn't back Prime Minister Edward Heath, and

George Meany withdrew his support from President Richard Nixon after 90 days. Nixon carried on because he had the backing of the Teamsters (for future considerations, i.e. get Jimmy Hoffa out of jail as soon as possible)

Statements by Prime Minister Trudeau that he would tax away wage increases and put labour leaders in jail for three years, have created further problems for those who will have to deal with the regulations in the anti-inflation program.

Clearly, labour is not convinced that the government means business nor that it can contain inflation. It is the expectation that prices are going to continue to rise that is upsetting labour. When the Prime Minister tells them that prices will continue to rise and this is echoed by Gene Whelan and Beryl Plumtre, perhaps you will understand their attitude.

Mr. Stanfield recommended a 90 day freeze of all prices and incomes followed by an 18 to 24 month period of flexible controls. This, coupled with a reduction in government spending and control of the printing of money, was his remedy for the economy.

But Trudeau's Anti-inflation Program is different. There is no freeze (yet) and the program will run for three and one half years, with provision for an indefinite extension after the initial three and one half year period. There is no program of reduced spending by the government, nor has any mention been made of slowing down the presses that print the money.

The economic experts say that you must have all three plans operating in unison if inflation is to be contained. We may see this unfold in the days and weeks ahead but at this time no-one is even talking about it.

Business men engaged in export have suggested devaluation of the dollar. But each time Britain, the U.S.A. and Japan devalued their currency inflation increased in almost double the proportion of the devaluation.

Given the confused make up of the Anti-Inflation Board one has to question its chances of success. Jean-Luc Pepin said that he was first going to investigate the high salaries paid to sports superstars. Beryl Plumtre is on record as violently opposing controls of any kind. Then Mr. Pepin has suggested that he would investigate marketing boards and Gene Whelan got upset.

The Governor of the Bank of Canada has admitted that the growth in the money supply was out of control. He suggests a growth rate of 12 percent - this is deciphered from his statements and those in the Anti-Inflation White Paper. But a drop from 15 to 12 percent is hardly the "substantial reduction" Finance Minister Macdohald has referred to. By comparison the U.S. treasury Chief William Simon has set a target of 7 1/2 percent growth in their money supply.

After the 1974 election I was reasonably certain that Canada would have an Incomes Policy, or Wage & Price Controls in place within 18 months. I am not given to predictions but my guess is that the program, as outlined by the Prime Minister is in for a rough ride unless there is a drastic cut in government spending coupled with a monetary policy that will allow the money supply to increase in unison with the real growth in the Gross National Product, but not beyond.

If confidence is restored in the dollar, and investors believe that inflation will be contained, then the money that is in short-term markets today will find its way into long-term investment, and the velocity of money will increase sufficiently to offset the short fall in the money supply.

I sincerely hope the Anti-Inflation Program is a success. To make it a success the Prime Minister is going to have to about-face several times. He will have to freeze prices at some stage. He will have to agree to a Parliamentary review each year. To placate big labour he will have to admit that he has handled the economy poorly, and that "monetary policy" was not a term he understood.

Some relief from the $600 ceiling will have to be offered to gain the cooperation of the average wage-earner. Some accommodation will have to be found for dividends. You cannot depress profits and dividends and at the same time expect any real growth in the economy. Finally, a realistic monetary policy will have to be enunciated.

We will find out in the months ahead whether Pierre Trudeau is a statesman or a political hack.
