TRIVIA

Working Women
 Women comprise 44 percent of the U.S. work force. This means that 32 million women are working full-time outside the home. Most women who enter the outside labor force by age 20 and remain single, work 45 years—two years more than the average man. Of 52 million families in the U.S., 6.6 million are headed by women; that is, a woman is the only working adult. On the average, those women in the work force who are divorced or widowed by age 35, will be employed outside the home for another 28 years.

People problems can be serious problems.
This is what Ontario is doing to help solve them in advance.

We attend meetings of immigrants and native-born minority groups to explain to them both their rights under the legislation and their responsibilities as citizens of this Province.
 We also help bring people into contact with local agencies like home-and-school groups, community and government agencies, and churches, which are available to help but which many people don't even know exist. Wherever there's a difficulty based on race, language, colour or creed, the Human Rights Commission is available to generate discussion and motivate people to develop understanding and respect for the other's point of view.
 Our job is to help bring people together and encourage healthier relationships among all groups.
